Asks Council to Tackle Atomic Control First

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., (AP)—The United States formally proposed Tuesday that the security council take up the problem of atomic control first in its quest for world-wide arms limitation.

Moving to give the atomic problem top priority in the coming discussion on arms in the council, Herschel V. Johnson, U.S. delegate, offered this resolution to the council:

"The security council resolves that:

"1. Pursuant to the general assembly resolution of Dec. 14 concerning the 'principles governing the general regulation and reduction of armaments' it gives first priority to the establishment of international control over atomic energy and, accordingly, it will consider and act upon the forthcoming report of the atomic commission as soon as received;

"2. It will therefore consider what further practical measures it should take and in what order of priority for the implementation of the said general assembly resolution."

The United States, in another surprise manoeuvre, also proposed that the council postpone consideration of a resolution on arms limitation submitted by Andrei Gromyko, Soviet delegate, until all proposals on arms regulation could be taken up at the same time.

Johnson told the council the United States did not oppose placing the resolution, turned in last Saturday, on the agenda but felt all resolutions on the subject should be dealt with concurrently.

The Russian resolution would require the council to proceed with the utmost speed in working out practical measures for implementing the general assembly resolution on arms regulation. Also, it would establish a commission with instructions for that group to submit a report on arms-control plans within at least three months.

The difference in the United States and Russian resolutions is that the United States seeks to attack the atomic problem first while Russia would tackle the whole arms question at the start.

The report of the atomic commission, mentioned in the United States proposal, was agreed upon Monday by the commission with 10 countries backing the United States' plan for atomic control and Russia and Poland abstaining.

Claim 'Ike' Might Run for President

WASHINGTON, (AP) — The Times-Herald said Tuesday in a copyright story that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was reported "ready to run for president in 1948 if the people want him."

Eisenhower, the Times-Herald said, is said to have told friends during informal discussions while on a fishing trip off Miami that "I will run for president if the people of the country want me to run."

The friends were not identified.

"The statement was the first evidence that the general has given any attention to frequent reports that he was being felt out as a nominee by representatives of both major parties."

Albania Rejects Britain's Demand

ROME, (AP) — Albania, in rejecting a British demand for an apology and reparations, has blamed Greece for mining the Corfu channel with results fatal to 54 British seamen, reliable information here said Monday.

Two British destroyers struck mines in the channel off Albania Oct. 22. Britain in a 2,000-word note to Albania Dec. 10 demanded redress.

No further details of the Albanian answer were obtainable here, but it was understood to be in the hands of the British foreign office in London.

(The foreign office declined Monday night to add anything to a previous statement that the Albanian reply was being studied. There were indications, however, that the British position might be stated after a cabinet meeting Tuesday.)

The tenor of the Albanian reply was said to be such that Britain apparently was left with no alternative but to carry out the threat made in her note of protest — to place the matter before the security council of the United Nations.

U. S. Declares Hostilities' End, Cancels Some Wartime Laws

WASHINGTON, (CP)—President Truman, in a proclamation, stripped his government of sweeping emergency powers when he formally proclaimed "termination of the period of hostilities of World War II as of noon E.S.T. Tuesday." The proclamation does not terminate the period of national emergency nor end the state of war itself.

Recommendations will go to congress in the near future, Mr. Truman said, with respect to cancelling the national emergency and ending the state of war.

His proclamation ending hostilities erased from the statute books at once 20 wartime laws.

Still others will die automatically six months from Tuesday unless congress acts to continue them. One of these is the Smith-Connally anti-strike act under which the government has seized strike-bound plants and mines.

Another is the law under which wartime leasing of silver held or owned by the United States is permitted.

In a few instances, Mr. Truman said, statutes affected by the proclamation give the government certain powers which he believes should be continued in peacetime, or at least for the remainder of the period of reconversion. In these instances, the president said, he will ask congress for additional legislation.

Ratification Treaties Officially to End War

By Richard Sanburn

OTTAWA.—No further action in declaring the war officially over as far as Canada is concerned is contemplated at present, it was stated here Tuesday.

For some purposes, the war has been declared at an end, but actually the war will not be over finally until all peace treaties are ratified.

For the purposes of the War Measures act, the war against Germany and Japan has been "deemed not to exist" after Jan. 1, 1946. That statement was contained in the National Emergency Transitional Powers' act, which came into force at the first of this year.

It will be remembered that the 'Transitional Powers' act was brought into force by parliament to give the government power to continue certain functions which formerly had been carried on under the War Measures' act, largely by order-in-council.

After the First Great War, Canada did not declare the war over until Aug. 31, 1921, nearly three years after hostilities ceased. Although a peace treaty with Turkey was not completed until 1924, Canada never did ratify this particular treaty, so from an international point of view Canada was not completely in a state of peace until 1924.

Say U. K. to Build Atom Power Plant

LONDON, (AP)—The Evening Standard reported Tuesday that Britain will build its first atomic power station "shortly" and said the plant "is likely to be working, probably experimentally, within two years."

The ministry of supply, government agency in charge of British atomic research declined to confirm or deny the report, which also said that "an American firm recently sent over machinery for separating the different isotopes, or varieties of uranium."

Hands Out $3,500 To Bowery Crowd

NEW YORK, (AP)— The "samaritan," who had to enlist the aid of police Christmas eve to prove the legitimacy of the $1,100 he handed out to habitues of the Bowery, paid a return visit Tuesday to give away $3,500.

He found recipients of his largess so eager that police had to control the crowd.

Joseph Bonavita, Brooklyn tavern owner, started his New Year's eve by crossing Brooklyn bridge and handing out dollar bills and silver to pedestrians and truck drivers.

Reaching the Bowery, he was recognized. Men who hesitated Christmas eve surrounded him shouting "Happy New Year." Bonavita returned the greeting and handed out cash. Soon he was surrounded by 75 men. Eventually they pushed him into a second hand furniture store.

A traffic policeman heard the commotion, summoned other police and together they tried to break up the crowd. Eventually they took Bonavita to a Bowery restaurant and had the men line up to receive their bills.

"Line them up," the tavern owner told police. "I want to give them money for New Year's. It's wonderful to be able to give money away."

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP) — The Chinese Communist radio at Yenan reported Monday that two brigades of government troops under Gen. Hu Tsung-Nan had begun an attack on the southern borders of the Communist zone surrounding Yenan.

Leftists Ask Role In Greek Regime

ATHENS, (AP)—The Communist-dominated E.A.M. central committee said Tuesday that peace in Greece is possible only through participation of leftist parties in the government. The committee declared that the present regime is "neo-Fascist."

The statement, which appeared in the E.A.M. newspaper Eleftheria Ellada, said that if the forthcoming United Nations commission investigation of alleged violations of the Greek border was fair it would reveal that the crisis was caused by imposition of the present regime on Greece and also by the "British occupation."

Spain to Receive Bill for Damages

LONDON, (AP)— A "very substantial" bill for damages to British property in Spain and to shipping in nearby waters during the Spanish civil war will be presented within a month or two to the Franco government, or its successor, a foreign office spokesman said Tuesday.

The foreign office recently ordered the British ambassador to leave Madrid, in accordance with the United Nations' recommendation on Franco Spain.

The spokesman said the bill would run into millions of pounds. He said the preparation of the bill was delayed by the Second Great War. When it was suggested that the account might be hard to collect, he remarked: "That is not the official view of the British government."

California Is Hit By 64-Mile Gale

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Gales as high as 64 miles an hour, raking most of southern California in a surprise year-end freak of weather left two men dead Tuesday, at least five others injured, and tangled wreckage of trees and Christmas ornaments in many cities.

Two inmates of a hospital near San Bernardino were crushed to death beneath a falling tree.

For a time San Bernardino's business district was closed to traffic because of breaking glass and flying ornaments which had been strung above the streets.

Felled power lines darkened the movie colony of Malibu for an hour. Citrus and other fruit growers said they feared some damage from scarring as the winds whipped trees wildly.

Tiny Pair Waiting for New Year

The younger generation shares in the excitement of the New Year but this is the scene that probably will be enacted in Edmonton homes with young children tonight. Taking a futuristic view of the matter The Journal photographer snapped this picture of Judy and Joan Barr, 12011 95 A st. They have been told that they will be allowed to stay up and hear the sirens and whistles at midnight tonight but this is what the photographer imagines will happen. Notice the clock which shows the time at 8:30 p.m. Those sirens and whistles will not sound for another three and one-half hours.—Garneau Studios photograph.

Nationalists in Indo-China Have Cut Off Coastal Town

PARIS, (AP)—A French general staff communique from Indo-China Tuesday announced that Viet Nam nationalist forces had cut off the coastal town of Hue, midway between Haiphong and Saigon, and had launched a series of heavy attacks against the French garrison.

Viet Nam artillery was reported to have resumed the shelling of Hanoi, doing considerable damage to buildings near the governor-general's palace but causing no casualties. The French said their artillery had returned the fire and that their Spitfire planes had machinegunned and bombed Viet Nam positions with good effect.

French troops, meanwhile, were said to be edging out along the road at Hadong, six miles southwest of Hanoi, where president Ho Chi Minh of the Viet Nam republic was believed to have established his headquarters. Artillery and planes supported this operation.

Dispatches from Saigon quoted Gen. Leclerc, commander of French forces in Indo-China, as expressing doubt that the fighting with the Viet Namese would be brought to any quick conclusion.

Constable Wounds Alleged Gunman

MONTREAL, (CP)— Georges Drouin, 20, was wounded in the thigh in a gun battle with a police constable early Tuesday after, it is alleged, he attempted unsuccessfully to hold up the New Pines restaurant.

Drouin is reported to have entered the establishment, brandished a revolver and told the cashier, "This is a holdup. Give me your money."

The girl screamed. Drouin fired a shot into the air, left the premises and commanded a taxicab.

Police Constable Edward Lenkaltis, near the restaurant, drew his gun as patrons left the restaurant pursuing the gunman.

Drouin, holding his gun against the taxi driver's head, was followed up Bleury street by the constable in another cab. The gunman abandoned his cab and an exchange of shots followed as Lenkaltis followed suit.

Drouin crawled into a laneway and, while firing from under a parked automobile, his gun jammed and he surrendered.

A search revealed Drouin was carrying an ammunition belt with 37 cartridges.

Plan to Blow Up Heligoland Island

HAMBURG, Germany, (AP) — A British naval officer said Tuesday the German island fortress of Heligoland would be blown up about March 31 in a blast he said would be "the nearest rival to the atomic bomb."

The 15 miles of tunnels in the fortress will be crammed with naval depth charges and blown to oblivion in one "big bang," the officer said.

Heligoland, formerly a British colony which was ceded to Germany in 1886 in exchange for Zanzibar, was developed by the Germans into one of the most powerful naval fortresses in the world, dominating the eastern half of the North sea and posing a constant threat to Britain. The British occupied the island in May, 1945.

Terrorists Abduct Alleged Informer

JERUSALEM, (AP)— A Jewish youth accused of being an informer of the British authorities was abducted Monday for trial before the Stern gang's dreaded "secret court" in the latest of a series of kidnappings attributed to Jewish extremists in Palestine.

The parents of the youth said his abductors informed them that he would be tried by the "secret court" on charges of co-operating with Israel Lewin, another alleged informer. Lewin was kidnapped from Tel Aviv Dec. 24 and killed.

Meanwhile residents of the Jewish towns of Rishin le Zion and Petah Tikvah were kept under virtual house arrest while British troops searched for persons who flogged four of their fellow soldiers.

Military authorities said 22 were under arrest at Rishon and Nathanya, where Maj. Paddy Brett was lashed 18 times Sunday night. Three sergeants also were flogged.

The statement said Lt.-Gen. Sir Evelyn Barker had confirmed a 12-lash sentence against Aaron Cohen, a young Jerusalem Jew charged with distributing pamphlets of the illegal Irgun Zvai Leumi organization. A month's prison term was remitted.

REPORT DEATH AT 114

SAN DIEGO, Calif., (AP)— Jacob Alcaraz, who claimed to be 114 years old, died Monday. He observed his 114th birthday last Oct. 31, his family said.

Lieutenant-Governor, Premier and Mayor Urge Faith, Courage and Good Will During New Year

HON. J. C. BOWEN

After two thousand years, the most universally desired blessing is a fuller realization, in our time, of the Angel Message "Peace on Earth Good Will Among Men." We in Alberta, with the rest of mankind, share a deep longing for the speedy achievement of this greatest goal of human welfare. We are becoming aware also that if we are to secure for ourselves and for civilization the blessings of peace, we require a new spirit of living as a foundation upon which to build. The only sound basis for a peaceful world order is a new spiritual outlook, widely

PREMIER MANNING

I welcome this opportunity to express on behalf of the government of Alberta the sincere and earnest wish that 1947 will bring to all our people a full measure of happiness, contentment and peace.

We cannot review the strenuous year through which humanity has just passed without a deep sense of gratitude to Almighty God for the favored lot that has been ours, as a people, in a world still scarred and suffering from the grievous wounds of total war. We live in a land whose soil has never known the tread of an invader's feet, whose cities and Today we open a new book with 365 blank and clean pages. To a great extent, we have control over the entries into this book. They may show progress toward a planned objective, or merely day-to-day erratic wandering.

The making of New Year resolutions may be a custom which has largely ceased to exist, but the beginning of a New Year is certainly a time for looking into the future with hopes and desires.

In the international field I am sure every citizen of Edmonton joins with me in the hope that the Nations of the world will, during 1947,

Raising of Exemptions Urged in Some Quarters

By R. K. Carnegie

OTTAWA, (CP)—Now that Finance Minister Abbott has forecast a balanced budget and possibly a surplus in the fiscal year which ends March 31, the country will demand further cuts in income taxes, officials Tuesday agreed.

The government is likely to accede to that demand and the big decision it must make is what form these cuts will take. Some argue a good way would be to boost exemptions for married persons from $1,500 to $2,000 and for single persons from $750 to $1,000.

Persons advocating higher exemptions stress that not only would it spread the benefits over all taxpayers by reducing the portion of their income on which they would be taxed but it would help industry's labor problems. Many more employes would be able to work full time without being liable to income taxes. All industries might benefit in reduction of absenteeism but it would be a particular help, they say, to pulp and mining companies.

It is explained that both pulp and mining companies are woefully short of labor and are competing for the manpower available.

While no accurate figures have been prepared of the actual loss of revenue the boost in tax exemptions would entail, a rough estimate is $100,000,000, leaving $400,000,000 for the finance minister from this one source.

One argument is that higher cost of living should be met to some extent by higher exemption, that a married man should be able to earn $40 a week before he has to pay income taxes, the costs of maintaining a home being what they are.

Earlier Refunds Of Tax Possible

OTTAWA, (CP)—Finance department sources said Monday there was a possibility Canadian taxpayers would receive a part of the refundable portion of personal income taxes collected during the war years before the repayment date in 1948.

Repayment date for the refundable portion, which totals $263,741,000, is fixed under the law for a year from April, 1947. The government, however, has power to advance this date should conditions warrant.

Officials said that if production and consumption of consumer goods levelled off and signs of deflation appeared it was possible repayment would be made earlier.

Claim Air Forces To Train Jointly

By Peter Inglis

WASHINGTON.— It was learned on good authority Monday night that the Royal Air Force and the United States Army Air Forces have arranged an exchange of personnel for training and familiarization purposes.

It could not be learned immediately whether the R.C.A.F. will also take part in the exchange, although it is known that talks of an unstated nature have been conducted by R.C.A.F. officers here in recent weeks.

The British-American exchange of air personnel is understood to be conducted with the two countries' present proposals for standardization of arms, which have not as yet gone far beyond the "feeler" stage.

It is reported that men of each air force will be attached to the principal stations of the other to the extent of some 30 men per station.

There they will become acquainted with the equipment, training system and with flying tactical and navigational procedures, which are in some cases different.

It is possible to speculate, without confirmation, that R.A.F. men sent to this country may learn something of the new tactics developed by the U.S.A.A.F. in connection with the atomic bomb and with the guided missiles on which the American service is laying stress, and that the Americans in England may make a study of jet-propelled equipment, in which Britain reputedly has an edge.

LONDON, (AP)— The Daily Mail and Daily Telegraph Tuesday said in Washington dispatches that Britain and the United States had taken definite steps toward creation of "an Anglo-American air force."

The Mail said "draft plans for joint training" of R.A.F. and U.S. (Army) Air Force personnel were submitted Monday to Gen. Carl A. Spaatz U.S. Army Air Forces head, "for signature."

Meanwhile an official denial was issued concerning a report published in the French press to the effect that Great Britain and the United States would sign a pact next March for mutual assistance in defence.

One-Year-Old Dies In Nanton Blaze

NANTON, Alta., (CP)—Year-old Joy Martin is dead and her mother, Mrs. Darrel Martin, 21, is in hospital in High River after a fire which destroyed the Martin home, 35 miles southwest of Nanton.

Three small boys, John, four, William, three, Donald, two, all at home when the fire broke out, are safe, only one of them suffering slight burns. The father, Darrel Martin, was not in the house when oil poured on the wood-burning stove blazed up fiercely, demolishing the newly-built two-room frame building into which the family had moved only 10 days ago.

Nanton is about 50 miles south of Calgary.

Informed of the tragedy by telephone a doctor from Nanton plowed through badly-drifted roads to render first aid to the mother. A rancher, Lyle Allcock, who resides seven miles southwest of Nanton, travelled by jeep to the lumber mill where Mr Martin is employed, to bring the mother and the baby's body to High River.

Hospital authorities reported Monday Mrs. Martin's condition was favorable, although she suffered serious burns in attempting to rescue her infant daughter. The three little boys were saved when they rushed from the burning house.

CALGARY, (CP) — Nelson H. Sletkolen, 84, was found burned to death in his farm home near Sibbald. He was last seen alive Dec. 22.

Sletkolen was partially blind and lived alone on the farm near the Saskatchewan border. A neighbor taking some groceries to him found his body.

SPAIN'S TAXES SOAR

MADRID, (AP)— The Spanish cortes (parliament) Monday adopted a record national budget for 1947 of 14,000,000,000 pesetas (about $1,276,000,000) and passed a bill increasing all taxes on an average of 20 percent.

Russia's Mood of Conciliation Brightens Hopes for New Year

LONDON, — A general mood of conciliation among the great powers —which has prevailed during the past fortnight and has been nurtured alike by Russia and western nations — brightens the peace prospects as Britons look ahead into the New Year.

After a 1946 made uneasy by the rivalries and suspicions of opposing power blocs — and especially for war — weakened Britain poised midway between the great Russian and American spheres. The closing days of the year have provided more concrete grounds for hope of betterment in 1947 than any had dared to expect.

These began with the windup of the foreign ministers' council in New York, with the successful completion of peace treaties for defeated Axis satellites and with a better measure of good humor among the Big Four ministers than at the end of any other of their previous get-togethers.

From that time forward, the Russians have shown a greater willingness to work together with Britain and America. The forthcoming foreign ministers' talks in Moscow to lay the groundwork for peace settlements with Germany and Austria tended to brighten the outlook still further; and with the impending talks in the offing, the

Two Navy Planes On Polar Survey

ABOARD U.S.S. MT. OLYMPUS, (AP)—Two United States navy Martin Mariners soared over uncharted and unclaimed Antarctic lands Monday, beginning the huge task of photographing the South Polar continent.

The planes took off from the seaplane tender Pine Island of the eastern group of this exploring fleet for surveys over the largely unknown coastline in the vicinity of the Franklin D. Roosevelt and Bellinghausen seas, and inland over Ellsworth Land.

The first plane returned to the Pine Island shortly before midnight Sunday after an eight-hour 1,000-mile flight, refueled and took off again. The second plane got off at 7:30 p.m. on a 1,350-mile hop expected to take 10 hours.

Rear Admiral Richard H. Cruzen directed the crews to give first priority to mapping the coastline, then back up their records with photographs of the interior.

Yellowknife Blaze Claims New Victim

Critically burned in the Christmas Eve bunkhouse fire at Negus Mines Ltd., Wallace J. Nault, 24, of Fairholme, Sask., died in hospital at Yellowknife during the week-end, it was reported in Edmonton. He was the third man to lose his life in the early morning blaze. Mike Rzepka, Kenora, Ont., died in the fire and Allan Colquette, 21, Owen Sound, Ont., died soon after.

Elorie Nault, Fairholme district farmer and father of the latest victim, was in Edmonton Tuesday awaiting arrival of his son's body from the north. Funeral services were planned to take place in Fairholme.

Five other men burned in the fire remained in hospital at Yellowknife this week. Condition of the men was reported to be good. Several other men sleeping in the wooden building at the time escaped with minor injuries.

MORE MILK, EGGS

LONDON, (Reuters)—Two of the most tightly-rationed products in Britain—milk and eggs—will be in better supply next year, officials said Tuesday.

Two Are Indicted On Treason Counts

BOSTON, (AP)— A federal grand jury Monday indicted Douglas Chandler and Robert Best, two expatriate American newspapermen, on charges of treason for allegedly serving as Nazi mouthpieces over Berlin Radio during the war.

Conviction for treason carries a mandatory sentence of death by hanging. Chandler was accused of broadcasting under the pseudonym of "Paul Revere." Best was on a Nazi radio program called "Berlin's Best."

'Witness' Seeking $15,000 Damages

MONTREAL, (CP)—Omer Lupien, a Witness of Jehovah who has been arrested more than 50 times in connection with his distribution of pamphlets, Monday filed in superior court his declaration in an action in which he is seeking $15,000 damages from the city of Montreal.

In addition to the damages, Lupien sought a declaratory judgment from the court that he is an ordained minister, that his distribution of religious periodicals is an act of religious worship and cannot be subjected to taxation as "peddling", and that Montreal police be ordered to stop their interference with him in the exercise of his religion.

When the writ of action was served on the city Dec. 4, counsel for the Witnesses of Jehovah described this as a test case and said the nominal sum of $15,000 damages was set so that if necessary the case could be taken later to the privy council.

Lupien is one of about 800 members of the sect arrested in Montreal and charged with distributing pamphlets without a city license. Validity—insofar as it affects the sect—of the city bylaw requiring such a license is being studied by a superior court judge as result of an appeal, through writ of certiorari, from a recorder's court decision.

QUEBEC, (CP)—Mr. Justice Boulanger Monday granted John Maynard How a writ of habeas corpus freeing him on $200 bail pending hearing of his appeals against conviction on a number of charges arising from distribution of Witnesses of Jehovah pamphlets.

How, 25, who had been in jail for two weeks, was released after the superior court judge announced his ruling.

How had been convicted by Recorder Jean Mercier on two charges of distributing pamphlets without a city license and was sentenced to three months in jail or a $100 fine on each charge.

He also was convicted of disturbing the peace and was sentenced to two months in jail or a $40 fine.

Hint Jews May Join in Conference

LONDON, (AP)— The colonial office said Tuesday that David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish agency executive in Palestine, would confer Thursday with Colonial Secretary Jones.

The announcement led to speculation that the visit might open the way for Jewish participation in the London conference on Palestine, to be resumed in January.

U.S. COMPOSER DIES

LOS ANGELES, (AP—Charles Wakefield Cadman, 65, composer of "The Land of the Sky Blue Water," "At Dawning" and other popular musical numbers, died late Monday. He suffered a heart attack three days ago.

To End Investment Plan for Workers

DETROIT, (AP)—The Ford Motor company Tuesday announced termination as of Jan. 31, 1947, of its employe investment plan, initiated more than 25 years ago by the elder Henry Ford.

Under the plan employes were permitted to invest not more than one-fourth of the amount they received in wages and salaries each pay day. On each $50 or more invested they received 4½ percent a year plus additional special returns.

During the last 20 years the company paid more than $20,000,000 to participating employes.

Jet cargo planes are being flown in Mexico.

spread and actively practiced among us.

Let us firmly resolve that this New Year we shall rid ourselves of the haunting presence of fear. Fear of another war, fear of the future have had a neutralizing effect on our initiative, imagination, and on real progress. We in Alberta have enjoyed a fair measure of prosperity; the future is bright with promise and prospect. The clouds are lifting on the horizon, not now very far off. The light of a new day is breaking. Hope and a new spirit are stirring in the heart of humanity. Then let us fervently pray that in this New Year, the Angel Anthem, "Peace . . . Good Will" may be sung in unison by human voices the world over.

I have emphasized the moral and spiritual aspect of world peace; because it is in our own interest, as well as it is our great responsibility to strive mightily to save human civilization. No nation may safely remain in an attitude of complacency or indifference, while strife, disease, and want, continue to ravish another. Nor is there any hope of permanent peace where there exists causes of international discord, racial antagonism, religious animosity, and social strife. Our democratic system will perish, unless we can keep alive in the minds of our people, the moral and religious ideals from which it has developed. This I conceive to be the immediate challenge that confronts every one of us this New Year.

To every one of my fellow citizens, I offer hearty New Year Greetings.

homes have been spared the impact of falling bombs and whose people have never been forced to bow to a conqueror's yoke.

We have not been called upon to experience the devastation and the desolation that follows in the wake of war, or to suffer the scourges of pestilence and famine which have hung as a dark cloud over much of Europe and Asia during the past year. Rather it has been given to us to live as free men at peace in a good land, well favored of God, and blessed with an abundance of those things necessary to provide for our every material need. But let us not forget that to whom much is given, of him shall much be expected. As we stand on the threshold of the New Year, we cannot escape the solemn responsibility that is ours as we prepare to resume our journey into a future as yet unknown but fraught with so many hopes and fears and with so much of importance to the entire human family. The problem of man's inhumanity to man has yet to be solved. The ability of men and nations to live and work together in peace and goodwill has yet to be proven. Many inequities and injustices that down the years have marred the happiness and contentment of men have yet to be removed, and many evil forces which work to destroy the dignity and the freedom of men have yet to be vanquished.

We, in this province, young and virile and energetic, have an important part to play in the task that is set before us. Let us undertake that task with firm resolve and with quiet but unshakable confidence. Placing our hands into the hand of God, let us go forward together to solve our problems, to overcome our difficulties and to contribute our full share toward the permanent establishment, in our own land and througout the world, of a true brotherhood of men and of nations, wherein truth and righteousness, freedom and equity shall, under God, reign supreme throughout the generations yet to come.

With these thoughts in mind, I extend to each and every citizen of Alberta every good wish for health and happiness and prosperity throughout the New Year.

In Canada we have several desires: That our domestic problems as between provincial and federal governments may be settled and that our country shall move forward into true nationhood; that our people shall find full employment; that Canadian families may find decent housing; that our aged people may get sufficient pensions so that they may live decently after their years of service to Canada; that our youth shall have the opportunity to live and develop as useful Canadian citizens and in the best home surroundings. I am sure these are some of our wishes for 1947.

Each one of us must assume our share of the responsibility of accomplishing these hopes and desires.

The citizens of Edmonton have every reason to face 1947 with confidence, and it adds to my personal pleasure to wish you all a Happy and Successful New Year!

Strike Scheduled By 23,000 Clerks

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—A strike of 23,000 Retail Clerks' union workers, (A.F.L.) scheduled to close 6,000 grocery stores in southern California Thursday, will affect 5,500,000 persons and appeared likely to shut off 700,000 quarts of milk daily for homes in Los Angeles county alone.

GUNMEN GET $5,000

TORONTO, (CP)—Two gunmen, with hats pulled well over their eyes, herded the staff of the Ontario Silknit company into a corner today and escaped with a $5,000 payroll in cash. One of the gunmen had two revolvers and the other, one.

REDS DENOUNCE PACT

MOSCOW, (AP)—The government newspaper Izvestia Tuesday denounced the Anglo-American agreement on the economic unification of Germany as a violation of the Potsdam agreement.

Cautions Japanese On Future Actions

TOKYO, (AP)—Gen. MacArthur cautioned the Japanese people Monday night that unless they take full advantage of democracy and freedom "there can be but superficial and temporary change from that which brought only tragedy in Japan's past."

The occupation chief, in a New Year's message, said the success of many reforms which have come since the surrender depended upon the manner in which people discharged their new political responsibilities, the leaders they chose and the faithfulness of those leaders in preserving the people's rights.

In the year just past, he declared, "none will fail to concede major advances" toward a social system which seeks equality of opportunity, maximum human freedom and elevation of the dignity, well-being and happiness of the individual.

"Much has been accomplished," he said. "Much remains to be done. There have been many successes, some failures; many strong points, some weak; much good, some bad."

Big Timber Berth Returned to Crown

REGINA, (CP) Resources Minister J. L. Phelps announced Monday that the Pas Lumber company will surrender to the crown 15,000,000 board feet of timber. It is another move by the government to return crown land to public ownership.

The company's timber berths now cover 125 square miles, a "considerable" reduction over previous years but the company still is the largest private holder in the province, Mr. Phelps said.

Return of the 15,000,000 board feet will cost the province $2.25 a thousand feet in some areas and $3.25 in others, with total cost to be determined later.

There are only three other private operators now holding 28.8 square miles of timber rights plus 2,500,000 board feet of timber. Two other companies have rights for the current logging season only.

Mr. Phelps said the provincial government was elected on the policy of "public ownership of our crown lands" and "we look forward to the time when this can be consumated."

Families Ordered To Vacate Premises

TORONTO, (CP) — Three families which moved into Ottawa premises formerly occupied by the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards Dec. 6 will have to vacate, Mr. Justice Wilson ruled Monday.

Mr. Justice Wilson heard a motion on behalf of the dominion government, asking for an injunction restraining the families from remaining in possessession of the premises.

Granting an interim injunction, Mr. Justice Wilson specified the order will not go into effect until Jan. 20.

Russia's Mood of Conciliation Brighten Hopes for New Year

Moscovites are exhibiting an earnestness as strong as that in the west to keep the new atmosphere of accommodation alive.

The Anglo-American decision to weld their occupation zones in Germany into an economic unit and the decision to standardize army equipment and air force training, two developments which were read by many as an indication of a coming exclusive entente between the English-speaking groups, have now been offset at least in part by the announcement that Viscount Montgomery will shortly visit Moscow and converse with top marshals of the Red army.

The British army leaders visit, "courtesy call," is bound to quiet which is something more than a some of the critics of British Foreign Minister Bevin, who have accused him repeatedly of tying this nation's war chariot to the American star and ignoring the red star of Russia.

Two Problems Aired

However, when parliament resumes after the Christmas recess and Bevin appears in commons to preside over a full-dress foreign policy debate, there are still vulnerable points upon which he, and more particularly the government, can be attacked.

The two foreign — or colonial — problems which the labor government was more anxious to solve than any others still are virtually as difficult as ever.

In Palestine the reformation of the mandate to compromise the varying aspirations of Jewish Zionists and Pan-Arabics remains as far from accomplishment as when the government took over. Efforts to bring the opposing factions around the council table to find a satisfactory solution have been unavailing and have been progressively worsened by the increased violence of Jewish extremists.

Indian Difficulty Pressing

In India, where Britain also has been placed by history in the unenviable position of referee between contesting factions, the Labor government's endeavor to give the vast country self-rule with fair representation for all communities, has been little more availing. The prospects for the New Year, with the Moslems boycotting the constituent assembly and the Hindus refusing to accept the long-term provisions of the British independence formula, contain dangerous possibilities of civil war between those two numerous sects.

But if the results of negotiation and planning in India and Palestine have been negative, the results of patient diplomacy in the wider arena of the great powers has been unquestionably positive; the balance on the international ledger is in black.

If this gain in that sphere can be maintained it will be a happier New Year for those responsible for keeping the world's peace. At New Year's Day, it appears that all the responsible nations are trying sincerely to maintain it.

British milliners say women have lost their hat sense from wearing service caps.

Display 2 Stamps Worth $180,000

LONDON, (Reuters) — Two stamps owned by a New York collector and worth together about $180,000 are the most valuable of 20,000 stamps valued at nearly $2,000,000 on display at the British Philatelic exhibition.

Other exhibits include a United States stamp which cost 24 cents across the counter but now is worth $2,000 because the airplane in the centre of the design is upside down.

Loggers' Dispute In B. C. Settled

VANCOUVER, (CP) — Settlement of the dispute between International Woodworkers of America (A.F.L.) and Queen Charlotte islands logging operators was announced here Monday by Harold Pritchett, the union's district president.

The operators have agreed to pay seven cents an hour differential in lieu of loggers' transportation fares to the camps, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1946.

Power saw operators will receive 3½ cents a 1,000 feet and hand fallers 4¼ cents a 1,000.

Mr. Pritchett said the agreement provides for a nine-cent differential for loggers during 1947 in lieu of fares with an equivalent increase for power saw operators and hand fallers.

Nine island camps employing 500 workers come under the agreement.

The claim for higher rates was based on the fact that Queen Charlotte timber is bigger, the terrain more difficult, and the weather more severe than in other British Columbia camps.

Romans Protest As Prices Soar

ROME, (AP)—Food demonstrations erupted in Rome Monday while prices climbed steeper than ever in the wake of government efforts suppress the black market. Spaghetti sold on the black market at about $1 a pound, if one figures the lira's worth at its legal equivalent.

A throng of unemployed marched to the Viminale government building shouting: "Enough promises. We want bread and work."

Another demonstration in which women predominated occurred at the city food administration office. The group protested the increasing cost of food.

Calm returned to the city of Bari where one person was killed and a score injured in strikes and demonstrations last week.

TRAFFIC TOLL HIGHER

CHICAGO, (AP)—The United States traffic death toll in 1946, the National Safety council estimated Tuesday, will be approximately 34,000 as compared to 28,600 killed in car accidents in 1945 when wartime restrictions limited travel.

One N.Y. Woman Shoots Another; Says She Thought Gun Was Camera

NEW YORK, (AP) — A woman was shot and seriously wounded Tuesday in the crowded Times Square subway station by a woman who, police said, told them she thought she was taking a picture of the victim with a camouflaged camera.

Instead, a package, wrapped with a Christmas paper, contained a shotgun. The victim, Mrs. Olga Rocco 30, was taken to hospital in a serious condition with a wound in the left hip.

Police took the second woman, identified as Mrs. Pearl Lusk, to a police station for questioning and said she told this story:

Several weeks ago she was employed by an insurance investigator who told her he was investigating a case and wanted Mrs. Rocco photographed. Tuesday the man met her at a Brooklyn subway station and handed her the package, which was about 14 inches long with a small hole in it.

"This is a camouflaged camera," she said the man told her. "Follow that woman and take a picture of her."

When the other woman left the subway train at Times Square,, Mrs. Lusk followed. Through the hole in the package she pulled what she thought was the shutter of a camera. There was a loud noise and Mrs. Rocco fell.

Patrolman William Walsh, one of the first police to arrive, said that a man who rushed to Mrs. Rocco's side reported she told him:

"I'm going to die. He threatened me before. This time he got me."

Mr. McMahon, whose appointment as manager of the Edmonton branch of Taylor and Pearson, Ltd., was announced Tuesday by H. E. Pearson, president of Taylor, Pearson and Carson (Canada) Ltd. Joining the firm in 1927, Mr. McMahon had charge of radio serv-manager of the radio department and merchandise manager. J. M. Taylor will continue as managing director of automotive operations in the Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge branches.

Questions Failure Summon Coroner

WINDSOR, (CP)—Cameron Hillman of Windsor said Monday his father-in-law, Charles James Page, 78, was taken to a funeral home without first being officially pronounced dead by a coroner or a doctor authorized to act for a coroner. Page collapsed Sunday on the icy steps of a neighbor's house where he apparently had gone for help after a heart seizure.

"It was strange that Mr. Page wasn't rushed to the hospital," Hillman said. "I'm sure there was no negligence in this case but I've never heard of the police or anybody else ever moving a body without the coroner first examining it."

Walter Ballantyne of the Windsor ambulance service said regulations prohibited him from removing the body to hospital without receiving orders from the coroner's office.

"The man had no pulse when I first examined him and I thought he was dead," he said. "I telephoned police and when they arrived they had orders from the coroner that the man be taken to a funeral home."

Thinks U. S. Seeks Uranium at Pole

MOSCOW, (AP) — A Red Star commentator expressed belief Tuesday that the Byrd expedition to the Antarctic primarily was a search for uranium deposits, despite official statements in Washington to the contrary.

(The Russian press announced Dec. 25 the departure of a Russian whaling flotilla of 10 ships for the Antarctic under the leadership of Soviet Explorer Voronin.)

WILL RAISE SALARIES

OTTAWA, (CP)— Prime Minister King announced Tuesday the government had approved the recommendations of the royal commission on the public service that the salaries of deputy heads of departments be increased, effective Wednesday.

Stranded on Ice As Leg Caught

FORT FRANCES, Ont., (CP)—Stranded on the ice of Baudette bay near here for two hours Monday when his artificial leg broke, Albert Haley is recovering in hospital from a frozen foot, hands and ears.

Haley, who lost a leg in the First Great War, was taking a shortcut across the ice when the mishap occurred, his artificial limb locking in such a way that he couldn't move.

Woman finally became aware of his plight and Haley was removed to hospital.

The French military government in Germany will permit 12,000 of the 20,000 Germans from that area now interned in Denmark, to return home.

A Hopeful New Year

For the first time since 1938 there is more than emotional significance to that annual salutation of "Happy New Year".

The year preceding the war was a year of sharp anxiety. During the war years, happiness was put aside as an aim secondary to freedom. Since the close of the war, we have wallowed in a slough of uncertainty and unrest.

But now, for the first time in nearly a decade, one may greet a New Year with some glimmering of hope that the pressing problems of the age, political, economic and social, may be on the way to solution.

There are still suspicions and fears and animosities abroad. But these are diminishing. They may never entirely disappear. But it is reasonable to expect that they will be minimized to the point where everyone may enjoy a measure of material security.

This, then, is the first New Year for a long time in which we may calculate our prospects, not on the negative basis of misfortunes we have escaped, but on the positive basis of gains almost within our grasp.

The problem of feeding the world is still a tremendous one. But it is slowly being solved.

The problem of production is in sight of solution because the unrest which interfered with production is gradually being allayed.

It short, there is no obstacle today in the way of complete recovery that time and common sense and good will can not remove.

We can enter 1947 with high hopes. In that conviction The Edmonton Bulletin wishes its readers and its friends the brightest of bright New Years.

Those "Barren" Rocks

The Dominion Government is to build a million-dollar water supply and sewage disposal system at Yellowknife. This is only important because of the fact behind the news—that a city is in the making there. Still more important is the reason why the city is being built.

There is no longer doubt about the richness or the extent of the gold-bearing rock found in that vicinity. This is the magnet that is drawing capital and people there, causing wealth-production to be started in a new spot on the Canadian map, and a new city to be created in the wilds, 650 miles in a straight line north of Edmonton.

Yellowknife already has a population of 3000, which is expected to become 10,000 under impulse of the mining developments now under way. A regular air service from and to Edmonton provides quick and easy communication with the outside world. An electric light and power plant is being constructed, to be operated by water-power capable of indefinite expansion. A properly-equipped airport is being established.

And the Dominion and the province of Alberta are building a 386 mile highway from Grimshaw to the mouth of the Hay river, across the lake from Yellowknife.

All this private and public money is not being staked in a gamble. The engineers have been there, and their reports are the basis on which the heavy investments are being made, in mines and the facilities necessary to their development and operation.

What was done in the Cobalt district, in the Rouyn region, at the Pas, is being repeated at Yellowknife. But with all the advantages of better technical knowledge and equipment than was available to pioneers in these earlier opened areas.

Once again the "barren" rock of Canada's "unproductive" hinterland is being tapped, with reason to suppose that the result will correspond to these earlier ventures, in the increase of national wealth, the expansion of employment, the creation of new industrial centres, and the building of new cities and towns.

It All Depends

For things necessary to ordinary living it now costs a Canadian $107 to buy goods which a year ago would have cost $100. That of course is the average price-rise during the year. On some commodities the increase has been more, on some less.

This year-end report by the prices board will be accepted with general satisfaction. The increase in cost of living is substantial, but it is not remarkable, unexpectable, nor cause for panic. Previous shortages and the year's deadlocks taken into account, the new level might easily have been higher.

It would certainly have been higher but for controls. There is no reason to doubt that. From which the inference is that the time to remove the ceilings on consumer goods has not yet arrived. That the level is still rising is proof that the ceilings are still needed.

There is a hint in the report that the price-rise may soon reach a peak, and recession start. Over the whole range there has been a considerable increase in the output of consumer goods during the year. Where production has not been halted by material scarcities or labor troubles, the volume has been as large or larger than in pre-war times.

And production is the only factor that can stop the cost of living going up, and start it settling back toward a level more in keeping with average incomes.

Only a Formality

Lifting the barrier against trade with Japan will not cause any sudden flow of Canadian products to that country, nor any flood of Japanese products into Canadian markets.

Japan cannot pay for imported goods, and is not producing for export in any large way. Its industries are bankrupt. It has no important home supplies of minerals or other materials. Its economy is under receiver-control. Its people have a vast reconstruction job on hand. They have no ships for cross-ocean trade, if they had goods with which to load them.

And that Canadian buyers have no yearning for articles stamped with the "Made in Japan" legend.

It is explained, very briefly, that the restrictions are removed so Canada will be in conformity with an international policy shortly to be announced—on behalf of the Allied powers or the United Nations. That seems likely to be the only immediate or early result.

How Inflation Works

The Bureau of Labor at Washington reports that the cost of living in the United States rose 18 per cent during 1946, and did most of the rising in the latter half of the year as price ceilings were pulled off and almost all controls removed.

But the wage-average did not rise in keeping. In July of 1945 a factory-worker was getting, on the average, $45.45 per week. But in February of last year he was getting only $40.58.

What made the difference? He was working overtime in 1945, but the pressure eased off when the war ended, and seven months later overtime was no longer the rule. It was the exception, so generally that the weekly pay envelope contained almost $5.00 less.

Not until Septmber last did the wage-average get back to the $45 dollar mark of July 1945. Not, that is, until the strike epidemic had largely spent itself, materials were more plentiful, and industrial operations had speeded up.

At September 1946 the wage-earner was therefore worse off than in July 1945, by the amount that his cost of living had risen in the fourteen months. If his hourly rate of pay had gone up that did him no good, for prices had gone up faster. His actual position was apparently somewhere between 10 per cent and 15 per cent worse than it had been in mid-summer of 1945.

Another wage-boosting campaign is predicted. Of itself it will not restore the balance. If it causes as many dead-locks and tie-ups as occurred last year, the position of the wage-earner will be worse, not better, when it ends. He may get more money in his envelope, but he won't get as much food, clothing and shelter for it.

Inflation is a gamble in which the wage-earner never wins. He is beaten before he starts. His only chance to better his position, or even hold it, is to undermine inflation by staying on the job and flooding the market with goods.

The Canada Year Book

To a host of Canadians the best Book Bargain of the year, as of every year, is the Canada Year Book 1946. This volume, compilation of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, continues to grow in size, the extent of the field covered and, in spite of the formidable word "statistics", in interest.

For example, amongst the special articles is a summary of the report of the Royal Commission on Co-operatives which is bound to be of timely interest to all Canadians, not least of all to us in the West. Another on the RCAF's major role in the war tells much that has so far necessarily gone untold about the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. Nor is there anyone, least of all a farmer, who will not find good reading in "Canadian Agriculture During the Transition Period" at pages 200 to 211. Alberta has a specially lively interest in "The Outlook for the Mineral Industry in Relation to the Economic Development of Canada". For veterans and their families there is "Rehabilitation of Ex-Service Personnel" and "Post-War Reconstruction" is discussed in general terms, since it affects all of us.

These are only a few nuggets from the mine whose wealth of information it is not possible to set down in limited space. Put out by the King's Printer, Ottawa (from whom it can be ordered), at cost of production, it sells at two dollars—one dollar to teachers, university students and ministers of religion if they will be satisfied with paper covers.

My pick for man of the year is not the same as Time's. It is Henry Wallace. The bombshell he dropped surely blasted himself out of office—but it stopped the drift toward war—it got exactly the response from the Soviet which Wallace anticipated.

MY PICK FOR WOMAN of the year is Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit.

Not only was she the first woman to head any national delegation to the United Nations — but she won the most striking victory for her cause—by a two-thirds majority secured, too, over open big power opposition.

CHINA'S NEW constitution is a fine milestone on the right road. The reactionary gang around Chiang will try to keep it a dead letter. But the history of all constitutions, once written down, is that they tend to make themselves come true.

The Soviet Constitution of 1936 is a model document on paper. Many of its articles are still ignored in fact.

The Declaration of Independence of 1776 said that all men were created free and equal. The U.S. Constitution of 1789 went a long way toward applying that equality in fact. Still—a century and a half later—there is anything but legal, social or political equality in most Southern states.

My point—give China time.

SOMEBODY SAID you should pay all debts, return all borrowed books, correct all mistakes, before the end of each year.

Hereby corrected is one mistake I made in 1946. I was barging around like a bull in a china shop on the matter of movies. Without bothering to look it up, I wrote that Hollywood had made a better job of Shaw's play "Pygmalion" than the English studio did of "Caesar and Cleopatra."

A good friend had the laugh on me. "Pygmalion" was made in the very same English studio that made "Caesar and Cleopatra." Sorry.

CANADA OVERLOOKED one Christmas present in the rush—the by-election to fill the late Mr. Cardin's old seat won emphatically by the Liberal. That means no general election in 1947—praise be!

Mr. King may be out to set a world's record for length of time in office. Examination of his career clearly shows that he always gives the best government when he is dependent for a majority on some other group farther to the left.

WORST SAYING of the year is by Oswald Mosley: "Fascism is stirring again." Mosley should long ago have been given a fair trial and treated like any other war criminal.

Membership in the German Nazi party was found by the Nuernberg court to be itself a crime. Surely then it is ten times a worse crime to be a member of a British wing of that same outfit.

To permit Fascism to pervert democratic rights by organizing to take away freedom from everybody is not democracy but insanity. Any country which permits it surely deserves what it will get.

THERE IS A TERRIBLE—almost laughable—confusion in democratic countries about rights and wrongs of free speech.

Voltaire wrote: "I disagree with what you say, but will defend to the death your right to say it."

Freedom of expression in a true democracy must always be linked to legal responsibility for what is said or written. The law won't let anybody incite to crime—it won't let anybody abuse free speech to suggest burning down somebody's house. The present laws of democracies are sufficient to stamp finally on Fascism. But if they are not—the laws should be changed to make sure that the would-be Hitlers are stamped on when they are little snakes—not full grown dragons.

We Miss the War

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

"With fingers crossed, I pray to Heaven
We'll have a happier Forty-seven"

writes the inimitable Frank Sullivan, in his annual Christmas greetings in "The New Yorker."

I think that whether we have a happier forty-seven, forty-eight, or forty-nine, depends on whether we find a moral and economic equivalent for war.

In fact, the world, which proposed to abolish war, should be concerned with finding things to put in its place. International war has reached total perfection, and has thereby ceased of performing its function. War, having reached total destructiveness, what with the atom bomb, rocket weapons, robots, and other magnificent achievements of science, such as bacterial warfare, with which, we are assured, all organic life can be more or less instantly removed from immense areas of the earth, has become universal suicide.

THOMPSON

Although the human mind is reluctant to draw full deduction from the late war, namely that victors as well as vanquished lose, we are nevertheless forced to be our brothers' keepers, to the extent of paying reparations to the Germans and Japanese instead of the other way around. The victor inherits a shambles and a relief roll, unless his political system permits of the institution of human slavery. The enslavement of enemies is only possible if a nation suffers from manpower shortage or insufficient machines, or is preparing for new war, or if the native population is also enslaved.

Thus, modern war becomes utterly irrational, which it has not been in the past.

THE FACT REMAINS, however, that war has been not only aggressive, but the ultimate appeal to self-preservation. Failing a substitute, which could only be found in universal acceptance of principles, and a universal rule of law, there will still be wars, less bloody and destructive: civil and political battles, waged by parties, organized classes, fifth columns, and "security police," aided by foreign political and propaganda intervention, tyrannous despotism to the ultimate corruption and decay of all civilization.

Revolutions and civil wars do not employ atom bombs or bacteriological warfare but they can ruin more existences than any of the international wars of the past century.

The concept of universal, perpetual peace, outside of law, invariably achieved by the strong at the expense of the weak, invariably the destroyer of states and cultures, also removes—unless a substitute is found—a creative role played by war in the internal life of nations. War, as William James observed some fifty years ago, serves a great function. It unites civilization in common heroic purpose; breaks down divisions; fosters solidarity; sets an objective for all; and glorifies and develops rare virtues, such as courage, self-sacrifice, enterprise, brotherliness.

THE TRUTH IS, I think, that we miss the war. During the war we achieved the incredible in production, overcoming every impediment. We lived in a high state of tension untorn by bickerings and strife. Everyone cooperated—labor and management, government and people. Many homes were darkened with terrible sorrow. But more were rejoiced by the survival of their loved one, and each survival was in the nature of a miracle, and evoked the almost forgotten emotion of gratitude. We found that in fighting a war the standard of living actually increased instead of declining, as all worked, and without interruption.

Unity is not achieved by "agreements" reached by compromises unsatisfactory to some even after the most bitter arguments. Unity is achieved by making common cause in a recognizable common purpose. That is the great advantage of four — or five-year plans, to achieve great national objectives. This country could, and should, develop such a plan, to be achieved within fixed limits: for instance, for removing obsolescent housing and replacing it with modern homes.

Whether we are happier in 1947 depends, I am convinced, on whether we are going places together, confident because we create common objectives for common striving.

EXPENSIVE SCHEME

Toronto Globe and Mail.

On New Year's Day the voters of Toronto will be asked to approve a large-scale housing project about which they knew nothing. This is the proposed "clearance, replanning, rehabilitation and modernization of the area ... known as Regent Park (North) ... at an estimated cost of $5,900,000". It will be, if approved, Toronto's first major public housing development. If successful, it will provide the model for any similar works in this city in the future.

BOY'S DANGEROUS GAME

Victoria Times.

The bewildering behaviour of a four and one-half-year-old Victoria child, who has flirted with death by throwing himself in front of streetcars near his home, will have shocked citizens into a realization of the needless dangers incurred by immaturity and thoughtlessness in connection with traffic. Presumably the practice was a game to the little boy, who knew no better.

Looking Back — Ahead

BY HARPER PROWSE, MLA

It has been a thorny and unsettled year, but we seem to have crossed most of our bridges without too much difficulty. Reconversion, in spite of strikes, seems to have got in its stride without the upsets and dislocations which we had been warned to expect. As a matter of fact, looking back over the year and remembering the fear with which we entered it reminds me of an old adage which read: "Most of my troubles have never happened!"

We didn't have the unemployment and trouble which it looked like we could expect. Although inflation has gained a couple of rounds on us things are still fairly well under control. The Big Three, Four and Five are still talking to one another. The country is still booming along on the crest of the wave of recovery. And, although pessimists are predicting depressive trends in 1947, there are other observers who don't think we have much to worry about in the immediate future.

BY AND LARGE the veterans are fitting themselves back into civilian life without too much trouble. It is true that there are individuals who have run into hard luck, and it isn't clear sailing for them all yet, but most of the ex-servicemen are well on their way to being completely re-established. And employers have found that the veterans settled down much more quickly than everyone had expected.

It is true that a large number of individual veterans are out of employment at the moment—but when the total number is compared with the total number that are working the percentage is surprisingly low. And National Employment Service report that they are not having too much trouble placing men who are able to work. There is still a manpower shortage in the country and the picture looks good for the immediate future.

The armed forces are finding it difficult to find the recruits necessary to bring their establishments up to peace-time strength. But at the moment this is not causing anybody any great headache for the simple reason that until the United Nations decide what commitments each nation must be prepared to make towards the international armed forces it is proposed to put under the command of that body nobody can estimate accurately what our requirements should be.

VETERANS WHO WANT to establish themselves in business, and many who have already started enterprises of their own, are still waiting for the DVA to announce that business loans are available. Parliament approved those loans last summer but up to the present the Act has not become law, pending completion of regulations and the spinning of the necessary red tape by governmental and banking officials. There is widespread demand, too, for the government to add some kind of a cost-of-living bonus to pensions payments and other grants and this will probably be considered by Parliament when it re-assembles in January.

The one big problem which still remains unsolved, especially in so far as veterans are concerned, is housing. Although the government is planning to build a lot of houses it still hasn't filtered through to the responsible officials at Ottawa that merely building houses isn't solving the problem. They still don't seem to realize that with construction costs what they are at present the average veteran just can't afford either to buy or rent the type of accommodation the government is building, or permitting to be built.

But all in all 1946 has been a good year—better than anybody expected. Now we look forward to 1947—well, the road ahead of us is always more interesting than the road we have travelled.

PROPRIETOR PROBLEMS

Editor, Bulletin.—After reading a letter from J. L. Thompson regarding the rental control board I thought perhaps a little confirmation would not be out of place. I own a rooming house in Calgary that cost me about 20 years earnings.

I have 12 very good business bachelors staying in the house; several have been 12 to 14 years. We supply gas, light and water with room service, clean linen every week and get the large rental from $2.75 to $3.00 per week. I always decorate my rooms if any tenant leaves at the average cost of $15.00. They are decorated just as well and better than some hotels. My taxes are $137.00 per year.

My wife even waxes the floors for the tenant. If the Rental Board can figure how I can make it pay I would be glad as I have been figuring all my life, and have had no return yet. I would suggest the rental board employ a supervisor to inspect the houses and regulate the upkeep of Rooming Houses higher than the common rooming house, some of which are a disgrace.

I am a traveller and I have to live anywhere I can. I have never found a room or hotel in Edmonton less than a $1.00 a day and am well satisfied to pay it.

FARM vs TOWN

Editor, Bulletin.—I would appreciate sufficient space in which to comment briefly on a couple of farm items (Bulletin, Dec. 12) running as follows: (1)—Kenneth Betzner, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, told the annual meeting of the Middlesex Federation, Wednesday, that farmers continue to work about 70 hours a week while industry continues to press for a general 40-hour week; and (2)—Up to Dec. 1, 85 rural municipalities were enrolled in the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan Section, and 10 were slated to enroll next year. Under this municipal enrollment scheme, under which all residents of a municipality were made members of the U. F. C. on payment of a lump sum, 208,591 membership were paid. Estimating that 50 per cent of these were adults, adult membership was more than 100,000.

So far as that 70-hour rural work week is concerned, I suggest that unless an effort is made to attain something like "parity" in this important respect, as between those who labor elsewhere, it will become increasingly difficult to anchor alert rural youth to the great primary industry, that feeds all of us in the secondary and service activities. I would like to see some of our smart urban cousins give an adequate reply to Mr. Betzner's question: "If the farmer worked only 40 hours, could the consumer afford the resultant rise in food prices?"

With the reference to that U. F. C. membership technique, all I care to say is that while it is a rather ingenious fee-collecting mechanism, it seems to me to be out of alignment with democratic processes. There is a wise old saying ("every advantage has its tax") which seems to apply here, and the result is to water down the quality and authority of the membership lists, on the basis that thousands of the so-called "members" could be disinterested, yes, even opposed to U.F.C. aims and policies. Someone has well said: "One volunteer is worth three pressed men."

Still another fire has been explained away with the convenient theory that it was caused by mice gnawing matches. Such an explanation has surface plausibility, but it lacks scientific backing. Many people who are supposed to know such things say that mice do not gnaw matches. In fact, they hate phosphorus, and will not touch it.

Fine Gifts to Be Awarded First Baby of New Year

All of the Yuletide season's gifts haven't yet been presented.

There's still a large supply awaiting some lucky baby as city merchants have excelled themselves in gathering together a variety of presents for the first baby to be born in Edmonton in 1947.

For several years prior to the 1946 competition the first New Year's baby had to be an early gird indeed in order to take the winnings. But this year 43 minutes of 1946 had ticked away before the eight-pound, four-ounce son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Powell made his appearance to win the prize.

It was an unfavorable year, too, for the Misericordia hospital, often first in provious contests. The honors for 1946 went to the University hospital, with the Royal Alexandra taking second place.

Record Recalled

If next year's first baby sets up a new record for a prompt appearance he or she will have to be really early to better the record of only a few seconds after midnight.

In the three years previous to 1946, 30 seconds, in 1943, was the greatest length of time that had elapsed between the first and second births of the year. In 1944 only four seconds separated the first and second births of the year. In 1944 only four seconds separated the first and second arrivals and in 1945 the period separating the two was only 11 seconds. All of these babies were born within a few minutes of the beginning of the New Year.

Whether boy or a girl, and whether early or late, Wednesday's winner is certain of many beautiful gifts from city merchants.

Special Interest Taken

Staffs of the respective hospitals have taken great interest in the event with nurses in maternity wards taking special pride when they had a New Year winner under their care.

The Misericordia hospital holds the record with five straight wins.

Last year the Royal Alexandra held top honors for the number of New Year's births with a total of four, three of them boys.

There was a total of 10 babies born New Year's day in 1946, five of them boys and the same number girls. The average number usually is 10 to 12.

While baby may expect a wide variety of gifts from city merchants, the mother also comes in for her share of presents and again this year merchants have donated to add to the happiness of the mother of the new 1947 "champ."

As whistles and shouts of New Year's revellers usher out the old year and ring in the new, it is certain hospital staffs assigned for duty Tuesday night will be keeping even a more interested vigil over their patients so that some lucky mother and child may receive the gifts being offered.

Baby Gifts

The First Baby born in Edmonton after the start of 1947 will be showered with gifts donated by these Edmonton merchants. Best wishes to Babies of 1947 and may the future bring them health and happiness!

Research Being Pushed

Atom-Powered Planes May Soon be Reality

By Paul F. Ellis

BOSTON, Dec. 30 (BUP) — Use of atomic power to propel airplanes is being pushed by the United States Army Air Forces and the Manhattan engineering district in conjunction with several aircraft engine companies.

This was disclosed by Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, deputy chief of air staff for research and development, at the 113th annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Lemay made the disclosure in discussing the requirements of this nation to meet the speed and range for aircraft of the future.

"FROM A MILITARY standpoint, the development of nuclear powered aircraft and guided missiles may well be as significant as the development of the atomic power," Lemay said.

His statement that the air forces, the Manhattan engineering district and several aircraft engine companies were working on a method of using atomic power to propel airplanes caused a great deal of interest among scientists attending this convention.

Experts heretofore have expressed opinion that airplanes, driven by atomic power, were in the far off future but Lemay's statement caused speculation that such power may be near.

ATOMIC ENERGY scientists, have said that because of the great physical handicaps, the industrial benefits from the harnessing of the atom would be limited to stationary power plants, or possibly a costly and almost prohibitive power mechanism to drive a steamship across the ocean.

Lemay did not elaborate on his statement that methods to operate planes by atomic power were being sought. This would mean, of course, an exciting development in that it would require a revolutionary type of atomic energy generating machine to propel an airplane.

LEMAY MADE THE disclosure in warning that if there is another war, the United States would be the first—not the last—to be attacked.

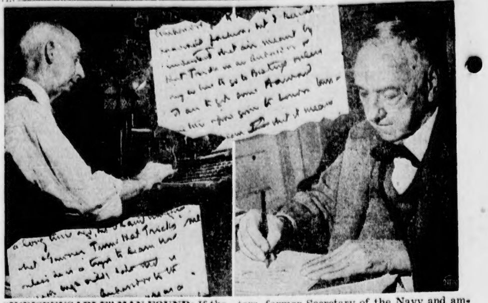
"The war will start with bombs and guided missiles falling on the United States," he said.

He recalled that a 5000-mile arc from the United States' vital industrial area across the polar regions takes in all Europe and most of Asia, 'all the industrial nations and potential war makers."

"This means," he said, 'that we can now be attacked by conventional weapons directly from the home ground of any of our potential enemies."

"ARMED WITH ATOMIC explosives, these will be powerful weapons. It is apparent that our space factor has disappeared and that the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans are not our frontiers any longer.

"Our frontier now lies across the Arctic wastes of the polar region."



"INDISPENSABLE" MAN FOUND: If the News and Observer of Raleigh, N. C., were to lose the services of linotype operator James Hayes, the staff shudders to think what would happen to the editorial page. He is the only man on the staff who can decipher the handwriting of Publisher Josephus Daniels, right, dean of North Carolina editors, former Secretary of the Navy and ambassador to Mexico. Daniels writes his editorials and columns in longhand, and a wretched "fist" it is, as inserts, above, show. But years of experience make it duck soup for Hayes, pictured left, composing a Daniels editorial.

More Stars Being Formed

Process of Creation Goes On in Heavens

By Paul F. Ellis

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 31 (UP) — The process of creation is apparently still going on in the heavens around us, a Harvard astronomer reported recently.

A study of the skies has detected at least 43 globules—clouds of gas and matter that eventually form stars. Some of them are estimated to be billions of miles in diameter.

The report was made by Dr. Bart J. Bok at a meeting of the American Astronomical Society at Harvard Observatory in connection with the 113th annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

THE GLOBULES are roundish dark nebulae and astronomers believe that through the combined effects of their own gravitation, attraction and of external radiation pressure, they contract to form the beginning of a star.

Dr. Bok in collaoration with Edith F. Reilly of Radcliffe College, said that the search of the skies had turned up 23 of the globules in the southern part of the universe, and that at least 20 others had been detected in other parts of the sky.

HE ESTIMATED that those found in the southern sky had diameters of 10,000 to 35,000 astronomical units. One astronomical unit is the radius of the earth's orbit around the sun—93,,000,000 miles.

Diameters of the globules in the other parts of the sky were even greater, some being estimated as large as 100,000 astronomical units. Multiply that by 93,000,000 miles and you get a mighty potential star.

But that isn't all. Dr. Bok said that the next larger variety of unit dark nebulae or globules, is represented by the so-called "coal sack", which is in the constellation southern cross The total diameter, he estimated, is at least a half million astronomical units.

FURTHERMORE, some atronomers have suggested that there exist dark clouds wih diameters ten times that of the "coal sack."

"The globules and the coal sack variety of dark nebulae are both worthy of detailed investigation, since they represent the closest observed approach to star formation," Dr. Bok said.

Another astronomer, Dr. Joel Stebbins of the Washburn and Mount Wilson observatories, said that evidence has been found that large regions of space millions of miles from the earth, "contain dust clouds which redden or even obscure stars beyond them."

HE SAID THAT astronomers can study better the arrangement of intermingled stars and dust in the Andromeda nebulae "than we can in our own galaxy."

"Just as a bee in a swarm can see better the shape of another swarm than it could see the shape of its own," he said.

Dr. Jesse L. Greenstein of the Yerkes and Mcdonald observatories said that the milky way, besides having stars, contains clouds of gas and tiny dust particles, and said that "dust clouds may sometimes weigh hundreds of times as much as the sun."

Counterfeiters Busy in Paris

BY RODERICK MacARTHUR

PARIS, Dec. 31 -(BUP)- The slickest and biggest counterfeiting gang of this generation is operating in Paris. But a whole squad of plainclothesmen, after spending dangerous weeks of trying to get into the confidence of the underworld, have announced that they had netted: two blondes, their two male 'protectors" and 5,000,000 phony francs.

IN SHORT, the police said, they had nothing. The girls, who had piles of silk pajamas, fur coats and luxurious apartments, were charming but uncommunicative. The men were "small fry," as the police suspected the girls were.

As for the 5,000,000 francs recovered, police estimated that the gang had already passed 300,000,000 counterfeit francs ($2,500,000). This leaves the police 295,000,000 francs to go.

The counterfeit francs are so nearly perfect that it is difficult to tell them from real French money. Instead of trying to get rich quickly by printing big denomination notes, the gang has contented itself with simply, blue and green 100-franc notes. Considering present-day prices and the quality of the counterfeiting, it is no trick to pass them.

THE POLICE, seeing that they were getting nowhere with regular methods, sent a squad of plainclothesmen into Montmartre to become black market operators, and, if possible, passers for the ring, so they could find out where the money mas being made.

One inspector succeeded in convincing the underworld that he was a big black market dealer. While out riding with Baptiste Landauer, one of the men under arrest, and his beautiful, 23-year-old girl friend, Estelle Leloup, the inspector pulled out his badge. Only the arrival of a detective squad kept him from having to shoot it out with Landauer.

They took Landauer and Mlle. Leloup to her apartment and while they were snatching counterfeit francs out of bureau drawers, another girl bounced in.

SHE WAS WEARING a silver fox coat over a pair of sheer silk pajamas, and identified herself as Louise Bilien, known as "the darling" in Montmartre hotspots.

The police made Mlle. Bilien take them to her luxurious apartment, where they found more bogus francs.

Two Points to Ken Hunter

Stamps Shade Caps To Gain On Flyers

REGINA, Dec. 31 (CP) — First period goals by Dunc Grant and Art Michaluk gave Calgary Stampeders, 1946 Allan Cup champions, a 2-1 victory over Regina Capitals in a Western Canada Senior Hockey League game played here last night before about 2,500 fans and enabled the Stampeders to narrow the margin between themselves and the first-place Edmonton Flyers.

A penalty to Tank Kummerfield, Regina defenceman, at the midway point of the period gave the Stamps their chance and within 14 seconds they had scored twice. Chuck Taylor got one of them back for the Caps before the period ended but it was the best the cellar-dwelling Regina team could do. From there on the squads battled without a score.

REGINA'S PASSES worked like a charm early in the game, but their shots failed to dent Russ Deriell's armour in the Calgary net. Then, halfway through the first period, a penalty to Kummerfield for dumping Sid Cradock proved costly for the Caps.

The Stampeders went all out, Dunc Grant scoring first after taking Ken Hunter's pass at the blueline, and then Art Michaluk beat Emil Francis on a high drive from the faceoff, Hunter again supplying the pass.

The lone Regina tally came four minutes later, while Calgary was a man short, Taylor scoring on Chuck McCullough's pass.

CALGARY—Dertell; Michaluk, Shoquist; Desmarais; Dame, Cairns. Subs—Brownridge, Hunter, Grant, Emery, Wilder, Craddock.

SECOND PERIOD: Scoring — none. Penalties—Desmarais, Emery.

THIRD PERIOD: Scoring — none. Penalties—none.

SOON BE BACK: Although he will not be able to fill his left wing spot for Canadians in the New Year's game against Capitols, Jimmy King expects to take his place in the regular lineup within the next two weeks. High scoring member of the Maple Leaf clubs of other years, Jimmy broke an ankle bone in the game between Canadians and Moose Jaw Canucks here on Oct. 24, shortly after scoring the goal which put Canadians out in front. He had hoped to be back about the middle of December, but still is patiently awaiting the club physician's okay to return to active hockey.

The Clubmen scored one in the first period and after an interupted second period in which play was stopped twice to clean the ice of snow, they came back to rifle in four more in the third while the Leafs were counting one.

Former Western Puckchaser Dies

SYDNEY, N.S., Dec. 31—(CP)—Harvey Richardson, 61, outstanding Cape Brenton athlete in the days when hockey players had to be iron men with seven on a team and no subs, died here Monday. He once played for Saskatoon in the old western professional circuit.

The hockey experience he best liked to recall was the time he played for Sydney when the steel city squad met Glace Bay in 1908 in a two-game series for the Cape Breton title.

IT WAS A scoreless stalemate after the regulation two 30-minute periods. The teams staggered through 14 10-minute overtime periods after that with no score.

The second game was almost a repetition until Sydney defenceman George McSweeney scored on a long shot to give Sydney the title in the 10th overtime period.

In 1909, Richardson went to Saskatoon but was lured back to his home town when Sydney entered the Maritime Professional League.

A leg injury on the ice some years later kept him out of the game for good.

BIHA Still Wants Canadian Sextet

LONDON, Dec. 31 (CP)—Prospects of a North American or British team winning the "world" amateur hockey championship at Prague next February, Monday appeared as bright as a New Year's day hangover, as puck officials heard gloomily that Canada will not be represented.

The American all-star club, nominated by the amateur hockey association of the United States, has been taking severe wallopings from continental teams in exhibition games and experts figure the team Great Britain will ice won't rate higher than junior "B" by Canadian standards.

SWEDEN, Czechoslovakia or Switzerland are favored to lift the title, held by Canada, and not contested during war years.

John F. Ahearne, secretary of the British Ice Hockey Association, said the welcome mat is still out for a club from the Dominion to compete but the association was unable to meet the financial guarantee asked by Edmonton Canadian juniors, last of five Canadian teams to turn down the trip.

Junior Leaguers Play New Years

Edmonton and Canadian Athletic Club juniors will play a scheduled game in the City Junior League at Varsity rink on New Year's afternoon starting at 3 o'clock.

SIGNED BY CUBS: Pete Tedeschi, member of Eskimos in the Edmonton Senior Baseball League last summer and starry member of Army and Navy Cardinals in the Alberta playoffs against Calgary, has been signed by Chicago Cubs. Pete will report to Tacoma of Western International League for spring training. Tedeschi, whose home is in San Francisco, played most of last season in left field for Bert Culver's Eskimos, but finished the year at third base. He even filled in at short during part of the Calgary series and his fielding and hitting played an important part in the Cardinal victory.

Pringle Doubtful Starter Saturday

Alex Pringle, injured in the Saturday game at Lethbridge, is the only doubtful starter for Flyers in the Saturday night Western Canada League fixture against Saskatoon Elks.

Manager Riley Mullen was delighted to learn the official report Monday that Alex's cheek bone had not been broken. The Flyer rightwinger had been in a head-on collision with Leafs' McCaine on Saturday and suffered a slight concussion.

"Pug" Young was at practice again Monday night, and will be back in the lineup on Saturday, Pringle was the only absentee.

During Record Year of 1946

NO WINNER IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 — Money isn't everything . . . in sports . . . as the fans of New York City can tell you. During the record-smashing year of 1946 they poured millions into the tills of the sports promoters — and all they've gotten for their pains is a bunch of also-rans.

All over America, sports enjoyed a boom year—but nowhere was there as big a year as in New York. Still, the New York fans moan, for they haven't seen a winner all year. Name any sport, and perhaps a New York entry came close, but there were no metropolitan champs. And, that's the gripe.

THE PICTURE is the same down the line—among the pros as well as the college boys—while the fans came out in support of the New York entry, the teams showed poorly in the standings, with very few exceptions. And, the most disappointing fact was the few near-misses.

In professional football, the big town came closest to getting a champ. The New York Giants won the eastern division title in the National League and the Yankees did the same in the all-America conference.

But, then came the league playoffs and the story was different. The Yankees lost to Cleveland, and the Giants went down before the Chicago Bears, under the cloud of an attempted bribe scandal.

IN BASEBALL, it was much worse, except for the surprising Brooklyn Dodgers. New York has three major league teams. The Yankees in the American League had a miserable season. Their prewar stars—especially Joe Di Maggio—failed to show their peak form, and the Yankees also were shaken by a change in managers.

Joe McCarthy left in mid-season and was replaced by Bill Dickey, who later resigned.

And the Dodgers . . . they lost the pennant, but they gave the fans plenty of thrills in the process. They forced the Cardinals into a playoff, after leading them for a good part of the season, and they surprised all the experts. Still, again that was a case of almost but not quite.

IN OTHER SPORTS New York didn't do even that well. The Rangers continued to get capacity support at the box office. In return, they gave the fans some of the poorest hockey New York has ever seen. The Rangers didn't even get into last season's Stanley cup playoffs, and this year they will very likely do as badly.

Basketball was another disappointment. The usually hot New York quintets just weren't that way last season N-Y-U made the best showing during the season, but the Violets wilted in the Madison Square Garden invitational and the N-C-A-tournaments

And so it went. Competitors from every other part of the country took the measure of New York's best.

WE'VE TALKED about baseball, football, basketball, hockey. We can give tennis and golf a quick once over—there just wasn't any kind of competition from New York in those sports.

The one sport in which New York sport fans could take pride was boxing. There the big city sluggers shined, though again, with exception.

Joe Louis continued his winning ways and wait, before you shout, "He's from Detroit." That might be but the Brown Bomber has been a part of New York for so long, that Father Knickerbocker has a solid claim on Joe.

Wolfe Quartet Wins In Challenge Final

Beats Pollon 9-7 in Windup UCT Bonspiel

Hank Wolfe's rink captured the Blue Ribbon (grand challenge) trophy in the United Commercial Travelers' annual bonspiel Monday when he edged out Harry Pollon's crew 9-7 in one of the four finals played at the Royal.

Jack Sangwin's rink won the British Consols (secondary) competition, Mel Seller captured the Edmonton Motors event and Bill Gray took the MacBeath competition by winning in the other three finals yesterday afternoon.

THE CHALLENGE final was a close battle right to the wire with neither rink holding more than a three-point lead at any stage. Wolfe led 3-1 after four ends and following a blank fifth, Pollon counted three to move ahead 4-3. Wolfe came back with two on each of the seventh and eighth ends to lead 7-4. Pollon counted two on the ninth and each added one before the last end started with Wolfe leading 8-7. The Pollon rink made a desperate effort on the 12th to overcome the small deficit, but couldn't make the grade.

THE WOLFE quartet was just fresh from a 9-6 victory over Pat Rose's rink in a semi-final game on the noon draw when it entered the final.

The British Consols final threatened to be a walk-away in the early stages when Jack MacLeod's four built up a 9-3 lead in six ends, but Jack Sangwin and his crew came bouncing back to win in 13 ends.

Sangwin finally took the lead in the hard-fought game with a four on the 11th, only to have MacLeod come back and with a perfect draw on his last rock, tie it up at 12-12.

THE MEL SELLER rink found Fred Kemp's four easy opposition in the Edmonton Motor final, building up an 11-1 lead in the first six ends and then coming out on top of a 13-4 count. The Seller quartet had previously beaten Ed Perry in the semi-final yesterday morning.

NIPAWIN, Sask., Dec. 31 (CP) — One hundred and fifteen rinks have applied for berths in the $12,000 Nipawin bonspiel to be held here Jan. 6-16, with 85 of these rinks having paid the required $100 entry fee, it was announced Tuesday by bonspiel officials.

Notre Dame and Army End Classic Rivalry

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 31 (AP) — Notre Dame and Army, admitting college football's biggest show had come to be played under conditions "some of which were not conducive to wholesome inter-collegiate sports," Monday called off "temporarily" their classic rivalry.

Rupture of the series, unbroken from 1913 except for a wartime lapse in 1918, was announced jointly by Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, CSC, Notre Dame president, and Maj.-Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, superintendent of West Point military academy.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT said both schools "avow the intention of renewing the traditional rivalry from time to time when resumption will serve the interests of both institutions and intercollegiate athletics."

It was reliably learned that the two gridiron giants may meet again shortly after 1950, ostensibly when the ticket-buying public cools off a bit and the betting fraternity is not so quick with a dollar.

The break-off was attributed to two reasons. The first was "the conviction of the authorities of both schools that the Army-Notre Dame game had grown to such proportions that it had come to be played under conditions escaping control of the two colleges some of which were not conductive to wholesale intercollegiate sports."

The other was given as Army's desire as a national institution to achieve greater flexibility in the scheduling of intersectional opponents throughout the country."

THIRD PLACE: Bob Carse, formerly with Edmonton Flyers and voted the most valuable player in the Western Canada Hockey League last season, today is right in the thick of the battle for scoring honors of the American Hockey League. Playing with Cleveland Barons, Bob has scored 14 goals and assisted in 27 for 41 points to hold down third place. His 27 assists are tops in that column.

Bob Carse Third In AL Scoring

NEW YORK, Dec. 31—(CP)—The veteran Phil Hergesheimer, Philadelphia wingman, added three goals and an assist last week to boost his season total to 46 points and maintain a two-point lead in the American Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Official statistics showed last night that Hergesheimer's 24 goals and 22 assists kept him on top with Cleveland's Johnny Holota rapidly closing in.

HOLOTA, the league's leading goal-getter, scored four goals and three assists last week to boost his point total to 44—26 goals and 18 asssts—displacing flashy Norm Burns in second place. Bob Carse moved up to third spot with 41 points.

Against Buffalo Bisons

Gorman Will Withdraw Injunction

OTTAWA, Dec. 31 (CP) — Tommy Gorman, manager of the Ottawa Forum Company, announced through his counsel Monday that he will withdraw an injunction against the Buffalo Bisons hockey club of the American Hockey League, the Houston, Texas Clippers, and hockey scout Happy Emms.

The injunction against the two clubs and Emms was filed here after Les Hickey and Jimmy McFadden, both members of the Ottawa Senators, operated by the Forum company, left for Buffalo The two players have been detained by United States immigration authorities at Fort Erie, Ont., since their arrival there.

THE COMPANY charged Emms with raiding and enticing the two Ottawa players to break their contracts. The players left without notice to the company and were believed slated for berths either with the Bisons or with the Clippers, the Bison's farm team in Texas.

In announcing the withdrawal of the injunction, Mr. Gorman, through his counsel, Redmond Quain, said, "New arrangements are being made which will affect the matters which were under dispute. These arrangements are considered to be of great advantage to all amatuer clubs."

1946 Vermilion Exhibition Reported as Town's Finest

VERMILION — Agricultural society in annual meeting laid plans to further enhance the value of Vermilion exhibition to the community. Officers' reports, given to the membership, indicated that the 1946 fair broke all previous records in attendance and interest manifested in the show rings. Prizes paid livestock and other exhibitors were the largest for several years.

Boys' and Girls' camp, held at the provincial school of agriculture was reported to be the largest affair of its kind held in western Canada. Proposals were advanced which will doubtless result in a greatly broadened short course for the young people of the district in 1947. N. N. Bentley and the staff of the school were complimented for the excellent co-operation given the fair board in 1946.

Largest Exhibit

Beef cattle directors gave a report on the provincial shorthorn show, held at Vermilion in conjunction with the exhibition. The 1946 show brought out the largest exhibit of purebred Shorthorns in the history of Vermilion fair and evidently met the approval of the Shorthorn association which unanimously voted to repeat the show at Vermilion in the forthcoming season.

Evidence of increasing interest in the exhibit of light horses at Vermilion, which is rapidly taking primary position in respect of light horses in western Canada, was indicated by the numerous requests for additional classes. A separate committee has been set up to outline an up-to-date prize list, in which scope for the showing of light and heavy hunters, standard breds, American saddle horses and other types will be enlarged in order to broaden the field of competition and increase the interest of the public.

To Publish List

Mrs. Mabel C. Mooney was again elected to the chairmanship of the ladies committee and a meeting is being held before the end of present month to outline the prize list for hall exhibits. Grande Prairie Without Water

GRANDE PRAIRIE. — This town was without water at the week-end following a fire that destroyed the brick construction Imperial bank building Friday. One of the most stubborn fires Grande Prairie has ever experienced, firemen battled the flames for several hours.

Blaze broke out in the basement which was filled with smoke. Firemen formed a human chain as they were tied in a row by ropes and tried to reach the basement. Foreman Russel Burgess, who led the men, collapsed in the dense smoke and was taken to hospital where he is recovering.

As the mercury dipped to 30 below zero, firemen poured streams of water on the blaze until the town's entire supply was exhausted. No estimate of damage has been given but it is thought it will be excessive.

As the town's water supply was used up, Mayor J. E. Thomson issued an appeal to citizens to be patient in waiting for pumps to replenish the supply. He also asked residents to exercise care in heating their homes.

When the new dam and filtration plant is put in operation next spring, there will be no such danger from a water shortage.

Funeral Services For Fire Victims

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE.— Funeral services were held here Saturday for Mrs. Beatrice Scott, 66, and her granddaughter, Mrs. Juanita Larratt, 18, who lost their lives in a Christmas day fire that destroyed their farm home and barn eight miles east of here.

Earl Scott, 35, son of Mrs. Scott, who suffered severe burns when he rescued Mrs Larratt's one-and-one-half year old son Gerry from the burning house, was reported by hospital authorities to be making excellent progress.

Attempts to locate the baby's father, who went to find work in a British Columbia lumber camp shortly before Christmas, have so far been unsuccessful.

Last Rites Held For A. Schmidt

VEGREVILLE —Funeral services for Adolph Schmidt, old-timer here who died Christmas eve at his home at 81 years, were held at the Lutheran church here. Rev. Wiltgrvlie of Bruderheim officiated. Burial was in the Riverside cemetery.

Pallbearers were P. McDermid, Stanley George, C. Muntz, Fred Moyer, John Hohn and William Gehring.

He is survived besides his wife by seven sons and four daughters. There also are 28 grandchildren. Mr. Schmidt was born in Russia and came to Alberta in 1902. He settled at Bruderheim and lived there until 1918 when he and his family came to the Vegreville district.

Defence of Ireland 'Headache' For British, Americans, Irish

By Michael Rooney

DUBLIN, (CP)—The recent purchase of three British corvettes, the decision to obtain three more, and the appointment, after discussions with the British Admiralty, of an American-born Royal Navy officer as commander of the Eire fleet have thrown into the limelight the defence problem of "the troubled isle."

It is a problem in which three peoples are vitally interested—the British, the Americans and the Irish themselves. It provided headaches for the strategists of the Second Great War and apparently is as far from final solution as ever.

In the dail, Gen. Richard Mulcahy, slim, greying leader of the opposition, asked, "Will the minister for defence state whether any steps have been taken, or whether it is proposed to take any steps, to relate our plans for defence to those of other countries with interests in the Atlantic ocean?"

Gives Answer

"The answer to both parts of the question," said Defence Minister Oscar Traynor, " is in the negative."

It is fair to assume that the over-riding consideration in that reply was the existence of Partition. It is no secret that Prime Minister de Valera during the war would have been prepared to come to an arrangement with the United Kingdom for the defence of Ireland if he had been given authority for the whole island and not just for Eire.

When war came, Eire declared for neutrality. The prime minister and his ministers never lost an opportunity of declaring the armed forces would be used to fight invasion from which ever side it came.

But the Irish people smiled. They knew the rifles carried by Eire troops were British rifles; that the local defence force (home guard) used United States Springfields; and that Dublin's few anti-aircraft would have been more numerous if hard-pressed Britain could have spared more.

Helped With Advice

Countries do not first arm those they plan to attack, argued the people. And there is not the slightest doubt that Britain helped with advice as well as guns. In fact, there was a well co-ordinated plan of Anglo-Irish action ready for operation if the Germans struck at Eire.

But a new war might throw things into different perspective. Eire might not be as lucky again. Co-operation might have to be on a much more definite basis.

There can be no doubt that these are considerations which have been given careful thought by the Eire government's military advisers. The answer to the problem may be found in the fate of Eire's application for membership in the United Nations.

Firemen Morris Griffin is feeding from his lips a canary rescued 40 hours after it was buried in debris in New York's recent tenement disaster. For 40 hours, firemen and rescue squads frantically working to release trapped persons, heard the small bird, but could not reach it until all known victims were taken out.

3 Fires Blamed On Pyromaniac

VANCOUVER, (CP) — Police and fire authorities Tuesday sought a pyromaniac believed responsible for three fires here in four days and the sending of threatening letters to residents of an apartment building.

A three-alarm fire early Monday damaged a large, empty warehouse, used during the war by West Coast Shipbuilders, and imperilled 25 persons living in an adjoining tenement. All escaped without injury, roused from sleep by a caretaker.

The flames were halted before reaching the tenement but the warehouse was left a charred shell with damage estimated at $7,000.

"The fire was deliberately set," said Fire Warden Archie King.

Two residents of the Kitsilano district received "arson threats" Saturday. S. W. File, owner of an apartment block, and J. Copeland, caretaker, both received letters.

Arson was suspected in a fire which destroyed a west end building housing five families, Christmas eve, and also in the destruction of the office of the Auto Metal and Radiator Works the same night.

Expect Streamline Inspection By New Standards Division

OTTAWA. — The creation of a standards division of the department of trade and commerce under the direction of Alan F. Gill, as recently announced by Hon. James A. MacKinnon, minister of trade and commerce, has aroused considerable speculation in many quarters.

It would appear that the division will work toward these objectives:

1. Complete streamlining of existing weights and measures inspection service. The present service deals with such matters as inspection of scales, gas and electric meters, and other weighing and measuring devices.
2. Establishment of definite commodity standards in respect to a wide variety of manufactured goods.

Improvements Possible

The measurement of gas for household use, either natural or manufactured, and the metering of electricity are two cases where the systems of measurement could be improved.

Of even more importance to Canada as a whole is the matter of commodity standards.

If Canada is to become more and more important as an exporting nation, it is recognized goods that go out under the label, "Made in Canada" should be standard in quality. Only in this way will the dominion be able to build up and hold important markets. Canada intends to take a page out of Great Britain's book in this respect. Britain became known throughout the world as a nation which exported goods of uniform standard.

Domestically, during recent months, there has been a wide public demand for action along these lines.

Created During War

Before the war Canada did not have any such system. But with the creation of price control the prices board set up a commodity standards division in order to prevent degradation of goods. It was realized that price control would be useless unless the quality of goods was maintained in relation to prices.

For instance, shoes may be marked so the buyer will know just what quality he is getting for his money. The salesman will not be able to pawn off a third-class shoe for a first class price, certainly not without the purchaser knowing about it.

Mr. Gill, who takes over the new division, seems well qualified for the job. Born and educated in Vancouver, he graduated in 1924 from the University of British Columbia. After a year's experience in British Columbia industry, he came to Ottawa to join the department of mines and resources where he was engaged in fuel research.

Mr. Gill organized the codes and specifications section dealing with commodity standards generally, and the national building code.

He later worked with the British standards institution in 1939 and on returning to Canada was seconded to the department of munitions and supply and became assistant director general of munitions. In 1942, he became production manager of Ram tanks for the Montreal Locomotive Works. On loan to the British government, he was sent to Germany in 1945, as director general of reparations in the British zone. He has now been recalled by the Canadian government to assume his present post.

Plans Walk Rope Across Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, (CP) — Opposition notwithstanding, Arthur Trostl of Miami, Fla., says he will walk across the swirling Niagara gorge on a wire 2,000 feet long and two inches thick but he won't say when.

The "when" is important because it may determine whether Trostl can out-manoeuvre authorities who have expressed objections to his wire-walking proposal. Neither he nor his manager, Edwin Brockman of Buffalo, N.Y., would divulge details.

"If we can get permission from the authorities, we would rather work hand in hand with them," said Brockman. "But we have figured out an angle that will work. We will announce the exact spot the day of the stunt. That's because we expect a lot of opposition."

Trostl, who also calls himself Arturo the Great, said he could not understand why the authorities were unwilling to let him risk his neck. The 35-year-old stunt man and former circus Acrobat said he has worked over water before and at heights greater than that of the Niagara gorge.

The first time he worked above water was 18 years ago. He crossed the Danube river on a ferry cable.

THE CLUE

Little Tommy was being shown round the zoo for the first time, and showed great interest in all the animals.

"What's this?" he asked, stopping in front of a large bird.

"That's an emu," answered his father.

"And what's this?" asked Tommy, stopping in front of an animal.

"That's an gnu."

"What funny names! What use are they?"

"You'll find out when you start doing crossword puzzles," came the weary reply.

City to Hail New Year With Merry Celebration

I SAW TODAY: W. H. "Bill Wilson, preparing for a gala New Year's Eve celebration;

One type of malaria occurs as far north as Leningrad, Russia.

With heavy reserves of paper horns, other assorted noisemakers and tons of confetti and gaily-colored streamers, Edmontonians were ready Tuesday to hail the arrival of 1947 tumultuously and merrily.

FOR THE MOST part citizens both young and old were glad to see the last of 1946 with its upward spiral of living costs, protracted industrial strife, and continued housing and other shortages. There was hope in their eyes as they looked into the New Year.

Hotels and clubs reported a sell-out of reservations for New Year's Eve functions.

Officials at the Macdonald hotel said that 600 would attend the annual New Year's ball that will not end until 2 a.m.

OTHER DANCES were scheduled at Club Roosevelt and the Trocadero. The latter club, opening for the first time New Year's Eve, has had all reservations taken up many days in advance.

A New Year's Eve dance and jamboree is scheduled at the Recreation Hall 114 avenue and 127 street and a similar event will be held at the Silver Glade hall.

Calder Community League hall will be the setting for a grand frolic with a similar function in McCauley Community hall.

'TEEN CLUBS will stage a New Year's Eve celebration in the former USO hall and there are air force and army dances billed at Northwest Air Command and Prince of Wales armory, respectively.

For those not inclined to dance there will be special midnight shows, frolics and prize-giving functions in most of the city theatres. Rialto, Capitol, Garneau, Varscona, Roxy, Avenue, Dreamland, Empress and Strand have all planned special preview movies starting before midnight.

Skating rinks and ski slides will draw their quotas of enthusiasts eager to skate or ski in the New Year.

IN ADDITION there will be numerous private parties held in homes.

Several city churches have arranged watch night services.

Main feature of New Year's Day will be the levee of His Honor Lieutenant Governor J. C. Bowen to be held in the legislative building from 3 to 5 p.m.

Canadians and Capitols, two red-hot rivals in junior hockey circles, will provide puck fans with a spicy attraction at the arena New Year's evening, starting at 8.30 o'clock.

MEMBERS OF the Edmonton chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous, who are staging a keep-on-the-wagon" campaign during the holiday season, will hold a dance in their club room on 108 street New Year's Eve.

A former Edmonton resident and worker in the Knights of Columbus, Mr. Wells is now residing in the United States.

Presiding at the dinner was Faithful Navigator Joseph A. Nadeau. Archbishop J. H. MacDonald of the Roman Catholic archdiocese, Edmonton, was also an honored guest at the meeting, and gave a brief address.

Mr. Wells, addressing the meeting, spoke on the meaning of the 4th degree of Knights of Columbus, that of patriotism, outlining what it is and what it should be.

Breeders Group To Meet Jan. 7

The annual meeting of the Edmonton District Thoroughbred Breeders' Association will be held on Tuesday, Jan. 7, at the Macdonald hotel. Breeders from all parts of Northern Alberta are expected to attend.

J. M. McCallum, of the Domminion production service, Ottawa, will be the principal speaker. He recently returned from England where he purchased a number of purebred and thoroughbred sires on behalf of the Dominion department of agriculture.

It is understood that one of the thoroughbred sires will be loaned to the Northern Alberta District Thoroughbred Breeders' Association.

Staff of Hotel Has Yule Party

The usual quiet, dignified atmosphere of the King Edward hotel dining room gave way to laughter and merriment Monday evening when the hotel employes held their annual Christmas party.

A buffet supper followed after which songs by Miss Patricia Fox and dancing, was enjoyed by all present.

Guests of the evening included Jack Calhoun, Jerry Brown and Mrs. Doris Elliott, as well as wives and husbands of members of the staff.

THE VERY SUCCESSFUL evening was due to the efforts of Mrs. Miller Riedwig, Mrs. Arla Handford and Mrs. James Patterson.

Lorne Calhoun Chosen as Session Ends

Tuxis Parliament Names Premier

Lorne Calhoun of Edmonton, University of Alberta physics student, was named premier of the Tuxis Parliament of Alberta at sessions held Monday afternoon. He succeeds Jack Pritchard, also of Edmonton.

LEADER OF THE opposition is Bob Hatfield of Calgary. Deputy premier is Bill Dalby, Edmonton, who is also a student at the University of Alberta, in the physics department. Alternate is Alf Hosking, Vegreville, arts student at the university.

It was decided that the next session — the 28th session — will be held next year in Lethbridge.

Tuesday saw the prorogation of the parliament by Dr. W. H. Swift, lieutenant-governor of the Tuxis Parliament. This brought to a close the five-day session during which many resolutions and bills affecting youth were passed, in addition to much work accomplished in leadership training.

This 27th session of the parliament was conducted at the Legislative buildings, the council chamber at the buildings and at St. Stephen's College.

A THREE-FOLD resolution affecting religion and youth was passed in which the church, youth and the Tuxis Movement, and other youth groups, were urged to shoulder responsibility in bringing about reforms.

The resolution was passed because it was felt that Tuxis boys should take a stand on questions regarding the church: that "the church was not sufficiently challenging the forces that work for social injustice, racial prejudice and economic hardships, and that the church is not adjusting itself to meet the changing needs of youth, and that the church should be the most vital single influence in the world community."

IN THE RESOLUTION, it was urged that the "church should speedily encourage Protestant union; take a stand on political issues; take a stand on racial problems encouraging racial fraternity; suggest inter-religious gathering of Catholics, Protestants, Jews for the purpose of diminishing intolerant attitudes, and expand its education effort by sponsoring discussion groups on Christian attitude to the problems of today; help young people develop their social, mental nd spiritual capabilities."

The Tuxis Movement and other church youth groups were urged to stress personal problems in its devotional periods; undertake Bible interpretation and study of comparative religions.

YOUTH, GENERALLY, was urged to participate in church responsibility; support the church in its effort to co-operate with young people in sponsoring group discussions and "make the church and its ideals more a part of the daily life of youth."

For Teams Making Overseas Trips

Minister Advocates Federal Aid for Hockey

Canada, as the birthplace and cradle of hockey, should be represented in any world championship hockey tournament and the team representing the Dominion should receive financial assistance, when necessary from the federal government for overseas trips, in the opinion of Hon. Jas. A. Mackinnon, federal minister of trade and commerce.

"I BELIEVE it is in the national interest as well as being important from the standpoint of prestige of this country to have Canada represented in all world championship hockey series," the minister stated.

"If the best Canadian team has not sufficient guarantee to make trips to Europe or elsewhere in these world championship competitions I think the Dominion government could well give consideration to financial assistance," he added.

Mr. MacKinnon's remarks on the subject of government financial assistance to Canadian teams have resulted from the situation now prevailing with Canada going unrepresented in a world championship hockey series being played in Europe.

Several Canadian teams, including last season's Allan Cup winners, Calgary Stampeders, and Edmonton Canadians, western junior finalists in the Memorial Cup series, had to turn down invitations to represent the Dominion in the championship competitions because of an inadequate money guarantee.

Mr. MacKinnon said it is now too late to have the matter discussed by the federal government as far as the forthcoming European championship series is concerned but he felt the matter should be discussed before future world competitions are arranged.

MR. MACKINNON is leaving Edmonton Tuesday night for Ottawa where he will prepare for the opening of parliament on Jan. 30.

Monday, he confered with J. J. Saucier, KC, president of the Calgary Board of Trade, who made further protest about the moving of Military District 13 from Calgary to Edmonton.

The minister said the protest of Calgary will be given "consideration and study, just, as any other representation is studied, but it is not an official reconsideration of the decision of the cabinet to locate the MD headquarters in Edmonton."

Ten Below Here New Year's Eve

Colder weather will herald arrival of the New Year in Edmonton, according to forecasts given today by the weather office. Continuous snow is expected to fall throughout New Year's Eve, clearing by mid-afternoon Wednesday. It is anticipated that the mercury will go down to 10 below overnight, and remain at approximately that temperature throughout New Year's Day.

Highest temperature recorded in the city Monday was 18 above at midnight. The low was eight below at 7:30 a.m., and the overnight low recorded overnight was six above at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday. For the 24-hour period ending at 5:30 a.m. Tuesday, 2.1 inches of snow was recorded.

Blaze Damages Flooring of House

Slight damage to the flooring of a house at 11917 79 street was caused by a fire which broke out about 45 minutes after midnight on Tuesday. The house is occupied by Ralph Meier. The blaze is reported to have started between the flooring and the basement ceiling.

Cause of the fire is still unknown. District Chief Thomas Hardy with firemen from Halls No. 5 and 7 soon extinguished the flames using only one line of hose.

Thomas F. Crossen, Grain Buyer Dies

Grain buyer in Saskatchewan and Alberta for the last 30 years, Thomas F. Crossen died in Onoway, Monday night. He was 64 years old.

MR. CROSSEN has been employed as a grain buyer in Onoway for the past 12 years, coming to that town from Shaunavon, Sask.

He is survived by his wife, four sons, Fred and Douglas all of Edmonton and Frank of St. Paul, Alta.; two daughters, Mrs. J. C. Davidson and Mrs. J. Warner both of Edmonton.

A funeral service will be held at 2 p.m. Friday in Howard and McBride's chapel with the Rev. A. Magee officiating. Burial will take place in Edmonton Cemetery.

433 War Veterans Draw Allowances

Year-end records of the department of veterans' affairs show that at the end of 1946, 433 veterans in the Edmonton district were drawing out-of-work allowances. Although this number is smaller than that for the same period last year, it shows an increase of 54 over the past week. More than 400 of this number have been drawing out-of-work allowances for a period of between one and nine weeks.

Seahorse ashes, mixed with pitch, and rubbed on the head, was an ancient remedy for baldness.

Bank Clearings, Tax Collections

New Records Set As Year Concludes

Bank clearings, city tax collections, sales of city-owned property, and building permits issued all broke previous records by substantial margins, and are indicative of the industrial and commercial growth of Edmonton during 1946.

BUILDING PERMITS soared to approximately $14,740,000 for the year to beat the former record of $14,438,319 established in 1912, and is approximately 50 per cent higher than the 1945 total.

City tax collections also established an all-time ecord as approximately $5,753,204.62 poured into the city treasury from this revenue source. The previous record was set in 1945 when $5,404,050.52 was collected.

SALES OF CITY owned land also established a record as approximately $1,176,654 was raised from this source despite a sharp decline in sales during the fall months.

The 1946 sales total is $139,802 in excess of the $1,036,852 accruing from 1945 sales.

Sales during December this year amounted to $30,500 compared with $44,127 in December 1945.

Patronage on Edmonton's transportation system swept to more than 700,000 above the estimate of 36,000,000 passengers for 1946 with an estimated total of 36,641,000 passengers, compared with 34,030,535 for 1945, an increase of 2,600,000 passengers.

CUSTOMS COLLECTIONS for 1946 will be more than $1,500,000 ahead of 1945 on the basis of figures released by officials here at the end of November.

Gross earnings of the city's five utilities also show sharp increases, and it is anticipated that revenue from taxes and net surpluses will exceed the $1,200,000 mark by a substantial margin.

Trouser Thief Strikes Again

Two more pairs of trousers received the usual thorough going over at the hands of Edmonton's "pant pincher" Monday night. This time a gain of $150 was made by the thief who preys on unsuspecting roomers, who leave large sums of money in their trouser pockets and their doors unlocked.

GEORGE LAKUSTA, who rooms at 10026 103 avenue, awoke Monday to find that his pants had strayed from the room, and along with them went $150 in cash. He later found the pants outside the building but the money was gone. Another unfortunate roomer at 10313 95 street, known only as Mr. Smith, suffered a $30 loss under similar circumstances.

Three other persons also reported activities of room prowlers. Shirley Clement and Laura Miller, Western rooms, told police their premises were entered Sunday night or Monday morning. Missing are four bottles of cologne, a bottle of perfume a box of powder and two clocks.

A SHIRT, CAMERA, pocket watch and sweater, all valued at a total of $50, were stolen from a trunk in the room of N. Gillies, 10772 108 street. The man told police he was in hospital between Nov. 6 and Dec. 18 and the articles were stolen during that period.

Now Enjoying City Life

With $300,000, No Worries Arsenault "Takes It Easy"

Spud Arsenault, veteran northland prospector, who hit the jackpot last summer in the sale of gold finds to a large company for a reported price of $300,000 is "taking it easy these days."

SPUD IS LIVING quietly at a hotel in Edmonton "just resting up and enjoying life," he told a representative of The Edmonton Bulletin Tuesday.

"It's nice to get away from the north for awhile. This city life is doing me good. I've gained weight and I enjoy my meals a whole lot better than I did in the north. I may stay out of the north for good," he added.

He still has interests in the Yellowknife district and he worked a while at prospecting last summer but he isn't sure when he'll return, if at all, to the far north.

STILL A BACHELOR, despite high pressure to " marry me off" while on a trip to New York last summer, Spud is really enjoying himself.

"I've taken up skiing for exercise and find it a lot of fun. I also attend all the hockey matches and get a real bang out of them," he said.

Work in the rocky bushland of the far north is a hard life, Spud thinks. Besides the cold of winter there's the mosquitoes in summer.

"EDMONTON SUITS me just fine. I have no plans to enter business as yet. I just want to rest and enjoy myself," the jackpot gold prospector concluded.

Merrily . . .

A TOTAL OF 429 houses or suites are scheduled for construction by the Dominion government or through Dominion government agencies in 1947. This includes 250 by Wartime Housig, 91 by the department of veterans' affairs, and 88 suites by Housing Enterprises at the old penitentiary site.

Fire Prevention Drive Pressed

Inspection of public buildings as to their equipment in handling possible outbreak of fire is continuing rigidly, R. R. Moore, provincial fire commissioner said Monday.

THE CAMPAIGN which commenced last September is being pressed with the greatest rapidity possible within the limitations of personnel and equipment, and is being carried out in the concentrated areas of villages, towns and cities of the province, he said.

Several buildings in Edmonton have already been inspected, said Mr. Moore, and in several cases were found to be lacking in requirements of provincial fire regulations.

Adjustments in these cases have been ordered and will be re-checked by the authorities to be certain that the letter of the regulations is being observed.

FIRST ON THE LIST to come under inspection are buildings where there is a concentration of persons residing, hospitals, hotels, apartment buildings and especially business premises over which numbers of persons and families are residing, were included in the fire prevention program.

"The people are definitely fire conscious now," he said. "We are feceiving many calls for inspec- under inspection are buildings

Tuxis Training Outlined to Club

Democratic training being given to Tuxis youth, was outlined to members of the Kiwanis club at their luncheon meeting in the Macdonald hotel Monday. Several members of the Tuxis Parliament of Alberta, which is holding its 27th session in the city this week were special guests at the meeting.

BRIEF ADDRESSES were given by Premier Jack Pritchard, leader of the opposition, Lorne Calhoun, speaker of the house, Sandy Gilchrist and by Ernie Nix, one of Canada's delegates to the World Youth Conference held in London, England, last year. The speakers were introduced by the Rev. Arthur T. Morgan, executive secretary, who also outlined the growth of the Tuxis movement in Alberta.

Mr. Gilchrist, speaker of the house, outlined the organization and function of the boy's parliament.

Premier Jack Pritchard spoke of the work being done at the present session to co-ordinate the work of youth organizations throughout the province, and of the manner in which the problems of the Tuxis youth were being handled. Lorne Calhoun, leader of the opposition, outlined briefly the work done by the Tuxis movement outside of the regular parliamentry sessions.

ERNIE NIX, as principal speaker, chose as his theme "Tuxis as Training for Democracy". He said that nations were interested today as never before, in the democratic training of their youth and that the Tuxis movement was not interested in simply training for democracy, but rather in training youth for a Christian democracy.

R. M. Moore, Kiwanis president, was chairman of the meeting. W. A. Hyndman was introduced as a new member to the club.

Exhibition Meeting

The organization meeting of the Edmonton Exhibition Association will be held in the board room at the arena on Thursday, at 8 p.m. at which the officers for the ensuing year will be elected, and standing committees appointed. Moving pictures of the Edmonton summer fair and the Calgary Stampede will be shown.

Clean-Up Yule Trees

The annual clean-up of Christmas trees that vendors failed to dispose of during the festive season is now underway, and the volume of work to be done this year is causing some concern to civic officials.

LAST YEAR one truck load of trees was removed from the market square, but this year three trips were required to clear up the residue.

It is expected that next Christmas vendors, as well as paying stall space on the market square, will be required to make a deposit to cover the clearing up of trees not sold.

Throughout the city on vacant lots many trees were abandoned by vendors, and these will have to be cleared up by city workers.

IT IS PROBABLE that regulations regarding the sale of Christmas trees will be drafted during 1947 to guard against the abandonment of unsold trees by vendors.

62 Girls Work Minus Friction

REGINA, Dec. 31 -(CP)—Some friction might be expected where 62 amateur cooks use one kitchen but the girls at the Hostess House residence here claim not a skillet has yet been thrown in anger during the meal-time scramble.

About 40 of the cooks are ex-servicewomen students at the Canadian Vocational Training school across the street from their home which is supervised by the YWCA. Most of them are studying to be stenographers, dressmakers and hairdressers but others are taking home economics and academic courses. The remainder of the girls have jobs in the city

EACH GIRL at the residence has a locker for her own cooking utensils and food, and prepares it in her fashion on a huge army-type stove in the communal kitchen.

However, the girls live four to a room and usually work in a quartet with one girl doing the cooking for a week while the others do the room-cleaning and other odd jobs.

Confusion in the kitchen is also minimized by a shift system under which the first group start their cooking at about 4:30 p.m. and the three other shifts come along at half-hour intervals.

THE RESIDENCE, formerly used by the air force, was opened to the girls last April when the city decided that such accomodation for ex-servicewomen in training was needed. Now there are a few "civilians" but preference for entry is given to the "service types". The house is always filled to capacity.

To counteract any signs of sloppiness in the kitchen the girls have formed their own house committee and pay a fine of 25 cents before they redeem any utensil carelessly left lying about. Proceeds so far have paid for a Christmas party.

Mrs. J. M. Fisher, a YWCA director who is resident hostess at the residence, says she has had a "wonderful" time since she started at the project and the co-operation shown by the girls is "amazing".

BESIDES neat rooms furnished with two double-decker army bunks and dressing tables, the girls have a communal dining hall and a lounge. They can have their friends in at any time but boy friends must leave at 11 p.m.

There are no rules regarding when residents must enter at night and the front door is never locked.

"Most of the girls went straight from school to the services where they had plenty of discipline and here they are being re-habilitated with a minimum of rules," Mrs. Fisher said.

Many of the girls are from Saskatchewan centres but several come from other provinces. Youngest is 14-year-old Joyce Entwhistle who lives with her ex-WD sister Ruth, both from Parkman, Sask. But generally they are in their early 20s.

In South Africa a native white, especially a Dutchman, is called an Afrikander.

MARRIED 51 YEARS: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Weston, 10852 78 avenue, who will mark their 51st wedding anniversary on New Year's Eve. They were married in Canmore. Mrs. Weston is the former Miss Caroline Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young, who were among the first settlers in Chilliwack, B. C., where Mrs. Weston was born 69 years ago. Mr. Weston was born in Leicestershire, Eng., 79 years ago. He is a retired CPR engineer, and came to Canada 58 years ago.

Starlet "Wants None of it"

Latest Movie Feud All About Haircut

By Virginia MacPherson

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 30 (BUP) — Comes now the latest movie feud: this time between Kristine Miller, a beautiful Danish starlet, and director Byron Haskin. They're battling it out over a haircut.

Namely, Miss Miller's. Haskin says she's gotta have a three-inch feather trim. Miss M. says she won't. And she has a special reason.

Two weeks ago the film hair stylists association voted her the actress with the "most photogenic blonde hair" in town. Twenty-two inches long, it is. In silken strands that hang halfway down her back.

AND IT'S TAKEN her at least 10 years to get it there.

Now comes along a mere male with orders to "chop it off." The very idea is enough to reduce Miss Miller to tears.

"I go home every night and just look at it," she said. "I'm even scared to go into the hairdresser's at the studio for fear he's told them to get me sheared."

The battle started, Miss Miller explained, when producer Hal Wallis gave her one of the top roles in his "I Walk Alone," now in production at Paramount.

"I PLAY A HARD, sophisticated society divorcee,' she said. "And Mr. Haskin thinks my long hair is messy He says he's been looking through his wife's copies of Vogue and Mademoiselle. And all the models there have short coiffures."

That's what happens, Miss Miller moans, when you turn a man loose on a fashion magazine.

"I'v tried to convince him an upswept hair-do would look just as sophisticated," she added. "But he looked at his magazines again and couldn't find any and so said no to that idea."

MISS MILLER HAS other reasons for not wanting to chop off her golden locks. For one thing, she says, her father would disown her.

"He's Danish," she explained. "And back home nice girls just don't cut their hair, I mean. That's a sure sign of a loose woman in Denmark."

Miss Miller tried all these arguments on Haskin. He wasn't impressed. He insisted she needs a short hair-cut to fit the part.

"She's supposed to have lived a hard, hard life in this picure," he declared, "she's brittle and glittery. She has to fit into cafe society."

AND THE WAY Miss Miller is now, Haskin added, she's just too darn wholesome. With her lush curves and that baby face, nobody'd take her for a lady who's lived—with a capital L.

"We can correct a lot of that with clothes and background and dialogue," Haskin went on. "But that hair. It's got to go. If I have to grab some scissors and snip it off myself."

Miss Miller tried appealing to her boss, producer Wallis. So did Haskin. But Mr. Wallis was too smart for 'em. He said he was sitting this one out—on the fence. They'd have to battle it out for themselves.

And that's just what they're doing. Last we saw of 'em, Miss Miller had a protective snood over those 22-inch strands. And the whole film hair stylists association on her side.

HASKIN HAD HIS script in one hand, his fashion magazines in the other, and a desperate gleam in his eye. He was sticking to Vogue and Mademoiselle

We'll let you know who wins.

Mariette Mazarin in Aged Home

Former Opera Idol Discovered Penniless

By Georges Tardy

GRENOBLE, FRANCE, Dec. 30 (BUP) — A former opera idol, Mariette Mazarin, who at the height of her brilliant international singing career gave the world's first radio concert in New York, has been discovered penniless and half-blind in an old folks' home in Grignan in south-eastern France.

Madam Mazarin, now in her seventies, was for 40 years one of the world's leading operatic artists. She sang before Tsar Nicolas and King Edward VII and was the confidant of such famous composers as Strauss, Massenet and Charpentier, whose works she helped to popularize.

BUT HER FAME DIDN'T last, and she dropped out of the public eye

She has been found living on charity in a small provincial hospice in the department of Drome. Now her old friends from her native city of Grenoble, are planning to come to her aid with a big benefit concert, in which she would sing again.

In her present miserable state, Madame Mazarin's only source of happiness is her store of memories from the great days when she was surrounded by admirers who showered her with gifts and flowers. She is proudest when she hears of the success of one of her former pupils, Mlle. Mazella, currently a star artist at the Metropolitian opera in New York.

THE FRENCH singer appeared in opera houses in most of the capitals of the world. Among her most famous roles were "Salome" at the Brussels opera and "Electra" in which she appeared with Enrico Caruso in New York.

It was after the first performance of "Electra," on Feb. 17, 1910, that Madame Mazarin, after coming out for 27 curtain calls, was visited in her dressing room by the inventor Leeds Forest.

Forest asked her whether she would consent to sing over "a little electrical apparatus" which would carry her voice to a waiting group of scientists, diplomats and newspapermen who were assembled to listen to the new invention more than 500 meters away.

MADAME MAZARIN agreed, and that night, in the presence of the Mayor of New York, she sang a pioneer radio concert. It was greeted enthusiastically by the press, which acclaimed her singing as much as it acclaimed the inventive genius of Foresst.

During the World War of 1914-1918, Madame Mazarin gave up the opera stage and devoted her time to caring for wounded soldiers. She also organized many benefit performances to raise money for war victims. Later she started a singing school, one of the pupils of which was Mlle. Mazella.

MADAME MAZARIN has managed to conserve her celebrated "golden voice" and is eagerly looking forward to the time when she will once again sing at the benefit concert being planned for her by her friends.

Disease Situation In Alberta Well in Hand During 1946

While there was considerable communicable disease reported throughout the province during 1946 the situation remained well within control, and at no time approaching the alarming proportions recorded in former years, Dr. A. Somerville, director of communicable diseases and inspector of hospitals, said Monday.

The incidence of poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) this year was much higher than last year, he said, adding however that the disease generally was of a mild type which had apparently run the limit of its course, no cases having been reported for a number of weeks.

Comparisons made on last year were not normal, he pointed out, in that 1945 was remarkably low in incidence of communicable diseases.

At present there was a larger than average number of measles cases, said the doctor, but the situation was well in hand.

With the average individual age increased considerably in Alberta there appeared to be an increase in ailments associated with age, he said.

"Considering everything we have been fortunate in escaping what might have been a much more difficult year insofar as communicable diseases are concerned," said Dr. Somerville.

Women's World a Little Hectic Today

After Christmas Parade to Exchange Counters of Retail Stores Commences

MARRIED 25 YEARS: Mr. and Mrs. Glen J. Gardner, who marked their silver wedding anniversary Christmas Day.

The women's world is a little hectic today. If you didn't know it was after Christmas, you'd think it was the height of the holiday shopping season.

The after Christmas parade to the exchange counters of retail stores is on. As a matter of fact it started bright and early the day after Christmas.

It probably was the same everywhere, but in New York the stores were filled with shoppers carrying armloads of bundles. If you thought people were on a shopping spree—a closer look would tell you differently. Most of the bundles had a rakish, haphazard appearance. One would be wrapped in a battered piece of Christmas paper with a string tied around the middle. Another would be a bare box tied with a frayed piece of red ribbon.

Christmas gifts were getting exchanged in a big way.

BY MID-AFTERNOON the day after Christmas a large New York department store reported 100 women's bath robes had been returned. Special adjustment counters had been set up throughout the store. Long lines queued up at each of them.

Harrassed young men and women rushed back and forth tending to the public's requests. Each of them wore a white carnation to signify he or she was a "Service Sponsor" —ready to help out the solemn-faced package returners.

A woried clerk in women's lingerie said, "If this keeps up all my Christmas sales will be cancelled out. Let's hope they spend their credit slips in my department."

Down the main thoroughfare of Manhattan a cab driver honked and jockeyed his way through the traffic jam. He threw up his hands in resignation.

"It looks," he said, "Like every woman in New York is bringing back a Christmas present. That's all I've had in my cab all day—women with packages."

He turned a corner, nearly running down a little old lady loaded down with boxes of all sizes, The cab driver chuckled.

"My last fare," he said, "was a lady with four packages. She wanted to go to a store. And she asked me to take her to the entrance where they exchange merchandise. How should I know what entrance they exchange merchandise?"

In one store a pert young blonde sits and signs credit slips as fast as she can "We expected some of this," she said. "And we're all set to handle the biggest number of exchanges in years."

SHE WAS ASKED why she expected so many returns and she answered: "Well, people are getting more selective. They took what they could during the war. Now they won't take just any old thing."

She pulled a pink quilted robe over the counter and threw it in. a bin. The customer had told her it didn't quite fit.

Many of the people jamming New York stores were just looking.

Some of them said they wanted to see if they couldn't get something better in the clearance sales.

A sheepish, freckle faced young man walked up to a jewelry counter. He had a pair of gold ear rings. When the exchange clerk asked him if he wanted to buy something else, he said, "No. They were for my mother." He blushed. "Then he went on: "I guess I better take the money and let her pick her own. I'm not such a good chooser."

At another counter, a plain little woman with gray hair opened a white box. "Look at that," she chuckled, showing an old fashioned knit underslip. She said. " I don't know whatever made my son think I'd wear a thing like that. I just laughed and laughed when I opened it. And his father said 'I told you, son, You should have given your mother something too flatter her vanity'"

The plain little woman continued. "My son just got back from overseas. And when I said it would be a cold winter, he thought he'd get me something to keep warm. He didn't know I'm just like all the rest of these women," she said, pointing to a long line behind her. "We'd all rather have the thing that suits our feminine tastes than something just to keep warm."

Letter-Writer Keeps His Address Secret

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—Somewhere in New Zealand there is a man who was born Joseph Wheeler—he may not bear that name now—who for 26 years has written to his sister in Canada without ever telling her his address.

His sister, Mrs. Coleman Rogers, of Prince Edward Island, has asked authorities in New Zealand to try to locate her brother, and through the years hundreds of men named Wheeler have been interviewed without success.

The letters are not frequent—often only one in two years. They are just short notes and always say his health is good. All the letters bear New Zealand stamps, but they are not cancelled in the Dominion. It is thought the writer hands them to seamen to post overseas.

Woman Operates Seed Company

SATSOP, Wash., Dec. 31—(AP)—It sounds like a "nutty" business, but Mrs. Cliff Rice will do $35,000 worth this year, thanks to the squirrels.

Mrs. Rice operates a seed company 10 miles north of here. She deals in pine nuts, spruce, fir and other conifer seeds, and the West Coast Lumbermen's Association calls it the only business of its kind in the country.

She buys them by the sack from pickers who start out each August harvesting evergreen seeds—and find their most fruitful harvests by robbing the caches which the squirrels store for their winter food supply

Mrs. Rice sells the seed, dried and shaken from the cones, to tree nurseries and for reforestation.

Mary Churchill To be Married

LONDON, Dec. 31 (AP) — Mary Churchill, 24 years old, who believes marriage and the rearing of a family comes first in the life of a woman, will be married Feb. 11 to Capt. Christopher Soames of the Coldstream Guards in fashionable St. Margaret's Church in Westminster.

Winston Churchill's youngest daughter met Capt. Soames in Paris three months ago. Previously her name had been linked with Prince Charles, regent of Belgium, and young Viscount Duncannon, son of the Earl of Bessborough, former Governor-General of Canada.

On the day her engagement was announced she was speaking to students at a girls' school in Hastings. She told them that the founding of a family "is, after all, the most fulfilling and natural life for a woman," and cautioned that it required "courage, wisdom and hard work."

Miss Churchill was London's outstanding debutante in the war year of 1940. During the war she was a member of the Women's Auxiliary Territorial Service, taking her place at times with crews manning heavy gun and anti-aircraft posts. She accompanied her father on many of his trips, including one to Canada and the United States in 1943.

Mining Thrills Aussie Women

By Jack Holdsworth

(Canadian Press Correspondent)

KALGOORLIE, Australia, Dec. 31 — (CP) — Three Australian women, who have decided to take up gold-mining as a career, have enrolled for a prospectors' course at the West Australian government's school of mines at Kalgoorlie, centre of the principal Australian goldfield, 400 miles east of the state of Perth.

THE COURSE, which is the first to be conducted by the school of mines, will teach prospectors where to look for gold. Prospectors usually find gold the hard way—by trial and error—but the course will put their work on a scientific basis by teaching them to avoid prospecting in places which geologists say are likely to contain gold.

The three women who have enrolled for the course are Mrs. Mary Walshaw, a dressmaker by trade but prospector by choice. Mrs. Joyce Oliver, former nurse whose husband is a prospector, and Miss Nell Brown, a policewoman who says that gold-mining has an "irresistible fascination" for her.

MRS. WALSHAW has a gold-mining lease called The Coonega, at Comet Vale, 60 miles from Kalgoorlie, where she gets gold ore at a depth of 60 feet. She has a man to help her, but raises her own stone in a bucket by means of a windlass, and pans off her own gold samples.

Mrs. Oliver's husband has a mine at Mungari, 12 miles from Kalgoorie, and she says she wants to learn as much about mining as she can to help him.

She adds: "There's nothing like prospecting for gold to give you a thrill, and I'll never go back to nursing as a career while there's gold mining to be done."

Miss Brown has not prospecled but says she intends to try her luck at it.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, (CP) — Rye futures prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange Tuesday gave an irregular display fluctuating widely with flurries of buying and selling. Prices declined as much as 10 cents and rebounded on fair shipper buying. There was a considerable amount of year-end covering.

At the close prices were 1-10 cents higher with Dec. 2.46½B; May 2.42½B and July 2.22⅞B. Cash rye 2.44½.

Asia's wheat production for 1946 is estimated at 1,500,000,000 bushels, a slight increase over the 1,430,000,000 bushels produced in 1945, and the 1935-1939 average of 1,442,000,000 bushels.

Bull Market Over Latter Half 1946

NEW YORK, (CP) — Prices slumped on the New York stock exchange in the latter half of 1946. The bull market was over.

The end after 4½ years of rising values did not come suddenly. Rather, it was a creaking slow-down, punctuated by spectacular day-to-day setbacks that served as warnings that the American economy, which had survived widespread strikes and post-war reconversion troubles, was showing signs of strain. In the final analysis, it spelled "sell" to many holders of stocks.

The turn came in mid-year after six months of booming markets that set a string of 15-year highs, when the Associated Press composite average of 60 leading stocks touched $182.40 in May, the highest market since March 26, 1931. By Dec. 9, the average was $66.20—and on that day the average had advanced 1.9 points, the widest climb since Oct. 31.

MONTREAL.—A crossroads was reached by security prices during 1946. The year inherited rising tendencies which continued until April when unsteadiness appeared and ruled until September when prices tumbled precipitately. They have been trying to establish a recovery since with the leadership of paper, utility issues and bank stocks while industrials had to fight effects of labor troubles.

TORONTO. — Mining stocks reflected the big share of worries that befell mining companies during the year from labor supply, and while the return of the dollar to parity in July clipped off revenue for gold mines the advance of new base metal properties and later rising prices for the metals helped the latter group.

Trading during the year recorded for golds a high index score of 147.31 on Feb. 5, compared with a low of 91.36 in September with a recovery around 105 in the final quarter. Base metal stocks topped at 108.20 in February sagged to a low of 76.18 by September. Industrial high of 207.83 came in June, low of 167.06 in Nov with Dec. rally to 180.

Bank Clearings 22% Higher 1946

Edmonton bank clearings for the year 1946 topped those of 1945 by 22 percent. Total cleared, $635,178,110 was approximately 116,000,000 greater than the figure of $519,306,233 cleared during the year 1945. Total for the week ending Thursday was $59,743,209 compared with $50,050,922 in same week of 1945.

During the 1945-46 season Australia exported 37 million bushels of wheat (among the smallest recorded) compared with 59 million for the preceding year, and the five year average of 57 million.

THIS IS HOW RUSSIA REALLY LIVES

Here Is the Soviet's System of Medicine As Described in Detail

Just what is Russia's system of medicine? How is doctoring organized in the Soviet Union? Do people have the same opportunity of choosing a doctor as they do here . . . . . and do they receive as good or better treatment as in other lands? Today in The Edmonton Bulletin, John Lawrence, British Press Attache in Moscow from 1942 until 1945, gives a comprehensive review of the entire Russian medical set-up and deals extensively with maternity problems and how they are dealt with in the Soviet Union. Mr. Lawrence edited the British Ally, the first daily paper ever printed in English in Moscow. He lived among the Russians for more than three years and was "not deceived" by any special propaganda.

By John Lawrence

This is how doctoring is organized in the Soviet Union:

There is something like the panel system, which covers everyone in the country. In addition to their work in the public hospitals and for their panel patients doctors are allowed to take private patients -- and earn good money for doing so.

People take just as much care in choosing a doctor as they do here, and a man with a big reputation will have patients visiting him from all over the Union.

There are large numbers of women doctors, and the public shows no particular preference.

Training in concentrated in special medical schools; the course is five years and students often specialize in one branch—for instance children's diseases. Graduates are liable to be directed to remote parts of the Soviet Union after qualifying.

Soviet hospitals were very full during the war, and I remember seeing the broad and warm corridors of one of the best civilian hospitals in Moscow crowded to overflowing.

AN ENGLISH GIRL on my staff who was taken mortally ill was given a little room to herself. She was operated on by one of the best surgeons with great skill, but too late to save her life.

The hospital staff gave her the most affectionate care, but there seemed to be no sense of continuity in organization, and she had a new nurse every day. I think this was typical of Soviet hospitals.

The skill in operating and care in essential cleanliness are as high as anywhere in the world, but the training of nurses is more perfunctory than with us and the organization less uniform.

If I were to have a fairly sharp illness which did not involve prolonged weakness or nervous exhaustion, I would rather go to a good Soviet hospital. But if my case required long and careful nursing I would rather take my chance in Britain.

THE ONLY superstition which I have met in Russian hospitals is that nobody must be allowed inside the door unless he is wearing white overalls. These are supplied at the entrance.

The price paid for victory by the Red Army was fully as terrible as one imagines. Every family seems to have suffered. In the streets everywhere you see men without arms and legs.

The supply of artificial limbs is hopelessly inadequate, and nearly everybody has to manage with crutches.

One of the worst injuries inflicted by anti-personnel mines is damage to the sexual organs.

Russian plastic surgery — by grafting from other parts of the body—has evolved a means by which men can eventually lead normal lives and have children. I have spoken to people who have seen the results of these operations.

MOST RUSSIANS have wonderful teeth, but when they decay the dentists have recourse to wholesale extraction and generally give their patients dentures of stainless steel.

The few who can get them prize gold teeth as a form of beauty. A colleague once stood next to a very handsome Red Army officer who smiled to show a complete set of gold teeth.

Constipation is scarcely known, I have been told, and believe, that the good teeth and the absence of constipation are due to the black rye bread.

Tells Experience Of Having a Baby

(I am indebted to Mrs. Laetitit Gifford, wife of the British Commercial Secretary, for permssion to publish the following account of her experiences in hospital.)

I was in Moscow under the care of Russian doctors during the whole of my pregnancy, and when my son was born at the end of May 1945 we were ten days in a Russian maternity home.

He was less than a month old when he nearly died of double pneumonia and a week later he was found to have whooping cough as well. I had it when he was born but I thought it was just a cough, and baby had caught it from me. The pneumonia was a "complication."

He was four weeks in hospital and, except for the first few days, I lived there in the same room feeding and helping to nurse him.

From then until we left the Soviet Union our Russian doctors kept a watchful eye on us both.

An eventful year had provided more opportunities than I wished to see how the [illegible] Soviet system [illegible] child [illegible]

I HAVE NO MEDICAL [illegible] experiences in Moscow.

[illegible]

AS SOON AS A woman is pregnant [illegible] has to be looked over by the doctor there at regular intervals until the baby is due. Two months before this she will have received a visit from a sister attached to the local child welfare clinic to make sure that she has the necessary things for the baby.

The maternity home where the baby is born is responsible for informing the child welfare clinic when it goes home, and the sister from the clinic (already an old acquaintance) calls to dress the baby's navel and to give any advice which may be needed.

A doctor from the clinic also calls to verify that everything is going all right. Each clinic is responsible for the children under two in its area.

A mother is allowed by law 35 days' leave with full pay before the birth and 42 days after, with 14 more should there be twins or complications. She is also entitled to three litres of milk a week from the sixth month of pregnancy until four months after the birth at 30 kopeks for 200 grammes.

FROM CONVERSATIONS with other patients I have the impression that this law is really observed.

In Moscow all citizens are entitled to free medical care and are attached to polyclinics for diagnosis and treatment which does not entail "hospitalization."

In addition, a man's work may admit him and his family to a polyclinic from which the general public is excluded. The treatment afforded by these "occupational" polyclinics is usually much superior to that given by the local ones and the more important the occupation the better the polyclinic is likely to be.

Scientific workers are important people in the Soviet Union and their polyclinic is such a good one that the Diplomatic Corps is sent there.

I was under the care of Professor Kolosov, head gynaecologist there. An amiable, elderly bearded Chekhovian character with a [illegible] of a woman assistant called Sladkova.

Though my health gave them no chance to display their skill I visited them regularly during pregnancy and they arranged for such minor troubles as an aching tooth and a rheumatic shoulder to be dealt with.

ONCE, WHEN I HAD had flu an [illegible] interval between visits, but considered that I was fully recovered, Kolosov startled me by exclaiming "You have been ill" in accusing tones as I entered the room.

But I never got used to the apparently [illegible] Soviet gynaecological habit of wearing a rubber glove all the time even in writing or answering the telephone and apparently only rinsing it under the cold tap before examining a patient. The same glove seems to be used all day, but whether it is ever properly disinfected I do not know.

TOWARDS THE END of my time I asked whether I could have my baby at the Grauerman Maternity Home, which was quite near both the office and our flat and which is run by Professor Arkhangelsky, of whom we had heard good reports.

Kolosov approved my choice and arranged for me to pay a preliminary visit to the professor and I waited in his room at the home while he dealt with the usual [illegible] Soviet Union can apparently only be operated [illegible] already [illegible]

Told to Bring Passport Only

[illegible]

BUT AS I GOT [illegible] home I shed more clothes and filled in innumerable forms until I finally found myself wearing nothing but my vest and answering questions about the number of rooms in our flat, the amount of V.D. in the family, the illnesses I had had, the education I had received (I proudly went down as "higher") and the state of my head (confirmed by a quick look with the nit comb).

I was then asked why I had waited until the great age of 33 before having a baby. And before I could think of a convincing reply I had been stripped of my remaining possessions—which were all given to my husband to take home—given a shower bath, fitted out in a nightgown from a sterilizer, and ushered straight into the delivery room.

THIS WAS A BIG tiled, well-lighted room with about a dozen hard, high couches round the wall, two of which were already occupied by women in a much more advanced state of labour than I was.

Doctor Sits at Table Whiling Away Hours

A doctor sat at a table in the middle of the room whiling away the hours when she was not delivering by filling in more forms.

After I had been there for about half an hour she suggested, accurately that I should be happier elsewhere for a while, and I climbed down from my couch and was taken to a dark little ward with about ten other beds in it.

I LAY ON ONE and realized that all the others were occupied, and that although everybody was having a good deal of intermittent pain there was a continuous murmur of conversation.

After a while I realized that I was ready to return to the delivery room, and the doctor told me to return. There I lay for some time on a new couch while my neighbour was encouraged to greater efforts by being told: "What—you a big strong girl of 27. Why, there's a woman of 33."

I watched her baby born from a range of about one yard and half an hour later she was able to see the arrival of my son.

NO ANAESTHETIC was given to anyone in the delivery room, nor did I see any apparatus for administering it. I was told that if surgery was necessary it was carried out elsewhere, and that an anesthetic was then given.

I later met a woman in my ward who had had a forceps delivery without an anaesthetic.

After the arrival of my baby I was shown him and asked to check the identity labels before they were tied on to him.

I was lucky that my baby was born on a quiet night. I was able to go straight into a ward instead of spending an uncomfortable day or so in the corridor. There were nine beds in my ward, which was rather too small to hold them comfortably.

The beds were of iron, but felt much harder, as the mattresses were very thin and the sheets were of poor-quality unbleached cotton which crumpled very easily. All linen for the patients or the beds came out of a sterilizer.

The medical attention seemed a good deal better than the accommodation although perhaps, too specialized. The doctor in the delivery room did nothing but deliver. The three on duty on the night that my baby was born were all women and all fairly young. As they seemed to work quickly and competently

I was quite content to be in their hands.

When the mothers arrived in the ward they were looked after by three [illegible] young women doctors who took it in turns to be on duty day and night.

[illegible]

FINALLY THERE were the [illegible] peasant women [illegible] made [illegible] patient [illegible] was taken to [illegible] any attention, and such washing as had to be done was carried out with permanganate of potash and sterile wool held by a sister in forceps.

Mothers were made to wash their hands before feeding their babies.

A "nurse" walked round the ward with a bucket in one hand and a jug in the other from which she poured a trickle of water over the patient's extended hands.

Needed a Certain Amount of Cajoling

It needed a certain amount of cajoling to get her to wait while I brushed my teeth, and I was the only patient to do so.

I THOUGHT the food was good. It was certainly better than what I ate in an L. C. C. hospital in 1942 and seemed more imaginative than what I saw in St. Thomas's before the war.

Breakfast consisted of a large piece of excellent pale brown or white bread, a small pat of butter, six lumps of sugar or three chocolates (the sugar ration for the day), a small piece of cheese and sometimes a spoonful of condensed milk, and as much tea as anybody could drink.

Lunch always included a big plate of shchi (cabbage soup), another big piece of black bread and a potato dish, or a stew.

SUPPER INCLUDED a cup of milk every other night and a plate of tvorog (curds), a milk pudding or another potato dish. Unlimited tea flowed all the time.

Patients did not have to give up ration cards for food supplied by the hospital.

No visitors were allowed, but there was a 'phone between every two beds which could be used between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. and 1 p.m. and 7 p.m.

The usual stay in the home was seven complete days. But if a patient ran a temperature or her baby was underweight she would be kept until the temperature had subsided or the baby was fully established.

If the mother was well and anxious to return home, but the baby was still weakly, it was sent to its local children's hospital and the mother would go and feed it there.

Normal babies were fed every three hours from 6 a.m. till midnight, and underweight babies every two hours.

BABIES WERE brought to the wards on a trolley holding two dozen.

Each baby had a label round its neck with a number which corresponded to its mother's bed.

As I was in the ward for more than a week I saw 16 other patients and they all fed their babies themselves.

I was told by a doctor that cases of mothers unable to feed their babies are rare, but when this occurs the clinic arranges for them to receive human milk and also makes cow's milk available cheaply. No prepared babies' foods can be bought in the Soviet Union.

BABIES ARE kept tightly wrapped up. They wear a little cotton shirt, a napkin, a large square of cotton material which comes over their heads like a nun's coif, a blanket which envelops them like a papoose and a cotton quilt wrapped round everything else.

As my baby was rather small he also had a wad of cotton wool over his head.

From the time he was born until he was undressed to put on his own clothes to go home I never saw his hands, feet or ears, and the hospital disapproved of our British baby clothes and Shetland shawls which they thought far too thin.

RELATIONS between patients and staff in the maternity home were amusing to anyone with experience of British hospitals, where the staff still has the upper hand and is secretive about temperature and treatments.

Here a patient's symptoms were looked on as the property of the whole ward who would often advise a patient to disregard the treatment prescribed.

My mental picture of Slav women as patient and uncomplaining has not survived these ten days.

I first lost confidence in it in the delivery room, where five of my companions kept up a continuous racket of "Oi, oi, oi," and paid no attention to the protests of the doctors. I later heard them boasting to an admiring audience that they had been heard in the street.

A young mother, it seems, is expected to be "nervna" (temperamental, highly strung) and even "psikh" (psycho-anything-you-like, unbalanced), and is under no obligation to try to conceal it.

THE PATIENTS in my ward came from all walks of life. There was a house-painter; a doctor who was the daughter of a well-known actor; a school teacher; a student translator in English (unfortunately, she found me impossible to understand); and several housewives. So far as I could judge, I received exactly the same treatment as any other Russian woman sent to that hospital.

My main difficulty was sleep. Russians appear to be able to do without it — or, at least, to rely on cat naps of a few minutes at a time.

The day after I got home a sister came from the local child welfare clinic. Then a doctor, who gave me a prescription for a "baby's outfit" from the chemist.

THIS COST 30 roubles and consisted of a thermometer, two rubber teats, two pipettes, a large square of muslin, a square of macintosh, two gauze bandages, a packet of boric acid powder, another of permanganate of potash crystals, and a tube of vaseline—all very well packed in a wooden box.

I continued to take the baby regularly to the clinic until I left Moscow for the country.

While we were away he developed a cough, and I brought him back to see the doctor at the clinic, and she diagnosed "grippe." She thought he would be better in hospital, and went to ring up the children's section of the First Moscow Medical Institute.

When she was phoning baby suddenly collapsed and stopped breathing, and she came racing down the corridor and revived him with artificial respiration.

AS IT WAS THEN clear that he was extremely ill, she arranged for him to go at once to the local children's hospital, situated across a courtyard from the clinic. Double pneumonia was diagnosed.

This hospital, the Savvolovsky is a small one of 60 beds for children under three years old. There were three doctors — an elderly and a youngish Jewess and a Russian woman of about 30. If they had not been competent and determined my baby would certainly have died, as he frequently collapsed and stopped breathing — as often as 12 times in 24 hours.

I also saw three different sisters in his ward who were friendly and kind, but practically untrained by British standards.

Two days later Professor Y. F. Dombrovskaya, of the First Moscow Medical Institute, was called in. She was a very good children's specialist — so good, in fact, that she had been to two parties to meet Mrs. Churchill!

SHE HELD OUT no false hopes—like all Russian doctors, she gave the unvarnished truth — but had the baby moved to the children's section of the First Moscow Medical Institute, which was equipped with all the best in the Soviet Union. I went to live there, too as I was feeding him every two hours.

This hospital appeared to be well equipped — mostly American goods. But there were British sunlight lamps and Canadian Red Cross overalls. Everything was referred to as an "American present," and there was some surprise when I pointed out that Slough, England (on one of the lamps), was not in the U.S.A.

Chief doctor under Dombrovskaya was a red-haired Crimean Jewess of 45 called Byela Benediktovna Krechmer—and to her more than to any other individual was my baby's recovery due.

SHE HARDLY left the hospital day or night for about a week put off her leave till he was out of danger, and eventually diagnosed his and my whooping cough, which was such a puzzling feature of the case.

At one stage she dived down his throat with a rubber Catheter and sucked up pneumococcal phlegm into her own mouth — quoting Richard Coeur de Lion as a precedent for such methods.

Death Is Prevented From "Blue Attack"

The rest of the treatment consisted of preventing his dying in a "blue attack" of asphyxiation. Oxygen was always available in a convenient "cushion" and artificial respiration—which had to be resorted to frequently— was efficiently carried out by the doctors.

Penicillin, some of which was obtained from the American Embassy, had been given in the "Savyolovsky" hospital, and in the institute he received by mouth various sulfa drugs—first sulgine, then sulfadiazine.

Three blood transfusions were carried out, and he was also given glucose intravenously, and on some five occasions, some of my blood intramuscularly, as I had just recovered from whooping cough.

IT WAS PERHAPS typical of the dramatic methods of Russian doctors that after Krechmer had restored the baby to life innumerable times by artificial respiration, she failed to diagnoze an attack of gas and nearly died because there was not room for his diaphram to function.

The nurses were a mixed lot. They ranged from raw country girls to a refined woman who told me she was an economist but hospital hours suited her. The majority of the nurses had done a two-year course but the standard was low.

There was a serious lack of continuity as the nurses worked 24 hours at a stretch and then had 48 hours off.

Mothers were expected to help nurse very ill babies and arrangements were made for them to live in the hospital. Without them, it is difficult to see how serious cases which needed watching all the time could have been cared for.

STATE MEDICINE had not resulted in any soul-destroying routine in that hospital. Babies were fed and treatments were carried out but nothing ever happened at the same time two days in succession or within an hour of when it was supposed to.

One evening I was taken by the sister in charge of the bigger children to see her ward. It was 10 p.m. and about 20 boys and girls ranging in age from eight to 12 were talking, singing, pillowfighting. In the midst of this babel a "nana" was waiting to give a boy an enema.

The sister did not seem to think the sight unusual, nor did the night nurse consider there was anything strange in the arrival in our room at midnight of a young man who said he was the "master" come to mend the electric plug.

AFTER ABOUT three weeks, my baby was discharged from the hospital. I made no direct payment to the Polyclinic for Scientific Workers, maternity home, welfare clinic or children's hospital. I raised the matter each time and always received the same answer: All these services are free and there is no machinery for collecting payment.

We have never been able to decide how far the baby would have received the same treatment, care and attention if we had been Soviet citizens.

Medically, his case was remarkable, for very few children get whooping cough so young and fewer still survive it. Our diplomatic status certainly made it easier for me to be given a room to myslf.

When I returned to Britain, I took my baby to a specialist at Great Ormond-street Children's hospital. He assured me he had made a complete recovery and that he must have been extremely well cared for to have survived.

The only aftermath of his illness is a tendency for his mother to spit over her shoulder—Russian fashion to keep off evil spirits—when assuring inquirers that he is now quite well.

Wives Tell Why Men Married Them

Recently in this column I suggested that, now and then, every wife should sit down and ask herself the question: Why Did My Husband Marry Me? with a view to freshening up the sales technique with which she caught him, in case it had gone a little flat.

The idea didn't arouse any popular response in wifely breasts, but it did cause a number of married ladies to go into reverse action and tell why they thought their husbands married them. Said one woman:

"AFTER GIVING this subject profound consideration during the 20 years I have been married to my husband, I am convinced that the reason that he married me was to get an iron-clad alibi for all of his mistakes and blunders. He blames me for everything that has ever happened to us, from the weather going sour to our children being girls instead of boys.

"But for me, he would be a millionaire. It is because I have not been an inspiration that his golf game is so bad. If I had ben a booster, instead of a handicap, he would have been elected president long ago. It is my lack of knowledge of dietetics that has given him stomach ulcers. And the only reason he ever goes on a binge is because I have driven him to drink. And he philanders only because I don't understand him."

Said Woman Number Two: "I think my husband married me to get a sparring partner. He just dearly lives a fight. He couldn't stand a Patient Griselda type of wife who would yes-yes him about everything and let him walk over her. So he picked me out for a wife because I had a red head and a temper hung on a hair-trigger, and any word is the fighting word between us. We go to it hammer and tongs, and there is never a dull moment in our house. And while we are always on the verge of divorce, we never go over the brink."

SAID NUMBER Three: "My husband married me because I an an escape valve for all his nerves and temper that he has to keep bottled up in business, but that he can let go at home. He dare not call his boss names, or tell his customers or clients what he thinks of them, but he doesn't feel that he has to be polite to a mere wife, and he says things to me that he wouldn't dream of saying to any other woman who had an able-bodied brother. A lot of men would blow up and burst if they didn't have wives they could swear at."

Said Number Four: "My husband married me to get a good cook who couldn't give notice and quit. I baited my hook with a lemon pie and dangled it before the poor fish's eyes and he bit. That is the easiest and surest way of getting a husband and keeping him. Just find a man who is sick and tired of knocking around hotels and clubs and boarding houses and having to order his own dinners. Make him a comfortable home and feed him on food the way he likes it, and you can't lose him. When God made men's stomachs bigger than their hearts, he handed wives a tip that they can play all across the board."

Said Number Five: "My husband married me because he was lonesome and he craved somebody to mother him. He is a shy, quiet, self-respecting sort of a chap who wanted somebody to love him and baby him and tell him how wonderful he is and to build up his ego, and I took on the job. And as the old fairy tale says "we got got married and lived happily ever after."

So here are the reasons that five woman give for their husbands marying them, What was your charm?

Bridge

By William E. McKenney

From Indianapolis I flew down to New Orleans for the Louisiana state tournament, and I thoroughly enjoyed my visit in this quaint old city. At least 15 states were represented at the tournament. A trip to various tournaments around the country would convince anyone that bridge is played equally well everywhere today.

For example, holders of the world championship Masters team-of-four title, Mrs. Margaret Wagar, William Christian, Capt. Mark Hodges, and Sol Mogal reached the finals in the team-of-four event at New Orleans, but were defeated by 10 points by a New Orleans team consisting of Julius Rosenblum, Dr. Richard Greene, Walter Herbert and Louis L. Rosen. When I asked the New Orleans team for a hand from the match, they insisted that the most interesting hand was made by Billy Christian.

Christian (South) won the opening lead in his own hand with the ten of diamonds, then cashed three rounds of hearts, winning the last one in dummy.

He led a small club and won with the ace, cashed the king of diamonds and the other three clubs. Dummy had the ace-jack of diamonds and the king-eight of clubs.

East had to let the spades go and try to keep the queen-nine of diamonds and queen-jack of clubs.

At this point Christian went over to dummy with the king of clubs, which dropped East's jack; then the eight of clubs was led, throwing East in and forcing him to lead away from his queen-nine of diamonds into dummy's ace-jack.

If west had opened the ace of spades and continued with the queen, Christian would have had no problem. He would have won the second spade with the king, trumped his third spade in dummy with the king of hearts, picked up the adverse trumps and claimed the balance.

Tb. Seal Fund Short of Goal

With $75,000 having been raised to date in Alberta's Christmas Tb seal sale, C. R. Dickey, secretary of the Alberta Tuberculosis Association, anounced Monday, that the association was still lacking $25,000 in making their $100,000 objective.

He urged all citizens who have not yet sent in their Tb seal donations to do so as soon as possible. Every dollar counts in helping to fight the disease in this province.

Christmas seal receipts are now $12,000 ahead of the same period last year, but more money still is required if the association is to carry on its heavy work with efficiency.

Why Grow Old?

Actress Joan Winfield demonstrates a way not to reduce your weight. Don't take pills or capsules for this purpose without your doctor having prescribed them.

By Josephine Lowman

Q. "I took some reducing pills and later several of my friends who had been taking these same pills told me that tapeworms had developed. Can this be true? I am very worried."

A. The only sane way to reduce is through exercise and diet. Any drug should be prescribed for you by a physician. I have heard that such pills exsist but I do not know whether or not this is true.

Q. "WILL YOU PLEASE answer this question for us for we have been debating over it for some time already. Does it make any difference when you take exercises? If a person does the exercise you suggest in the evening before retiring, well, wouldn't it help a persor gain weight instead of losing? By sleeping, this would tend to make the muscles relax. We want to know whether exercise done before retiring will help you gain or lose."

A. It makes no difference at all when you take your exercises. In order to lose weight you must increase physical activity and cut down on food. It is all the same, night or morning. Exercises are often prescribed for underweights, to be taken just before retiring, because it does often increase the quality of sleep and underweights sleep poorly. However, people who are reducing sleep well too. One does not have to sleep fitfully in order to lose weight.

Q. "I AM 14 YEARS old and have dark hairs on my legs. I have been told that if I shave they will grow back much thicker. Is this true? How can I get rid of them?"

A. There is a theory that shaving makes hairs grow in thicker. However I do not believe a word of it. There is no scientific reason for this assertion, so far as I know. I have known many, many women who shave their legs and this has not happened to them. It is possible that they may become a little stiffer but I do not even believe this. However if you would be happier you can use a depilatory instead. Neither method is permanent and must be repeated as needed.

Q. "I am 22 years of age, 5 feet, 3 inches tall, and weight 121 pounds. My bust measurement is 34 inches, waist 27 and hips 37. Please comment on my figure."

A. YOUR WEIGHT IS just about right. You should either take bust development exercises to increase the bust a little or waist and hip reducing exercises to shave off in those spots. There is a little too much difference between bust and hips, although this could be a question of boney structure.

Q "I have puffs and lines around my eyes that are causing me a great heartache. I am 30 years old and see many women my age and older who do not have them. I feel so badly about it that I am ruining my disposition."

A. FIRST, REALIZE that you are penalizing yourself by being less gay and by self-consciousness far more than any number of lines could. Get plenty of sleep, indulge in outdoor sports, be sure that you have optimum nutrition. Before that have a physical checkup to be sure everything is sound. If the eyes are actually puffed, you might also suspect an allergy. As for the lines, wear colored glasses when in the sun and do not squint. Watch facial expressions to see if you have any habits which may lead to these lines. Take facial exercises. Also be careful about lubrication. There is an emulsion which you can use about the eyes in the daytime, under your makeup. This is helpful because it keeps the tissues soft. I also believe that the hormone creams are valuable for this.

Elizabeth Woodward Says . . .

You had the shock of your life when you bumped into Jack downtown. You didn't know he'd moved back. It's been so many years since you've seen him. You almost passed by. But he yipped at you . . . right there in the middle of all the traffic . . . and you managed to get to the side of the street where he was. You both talked so fast and at the same time that you can hardly remember a thing he said.

All you're sure of is that he's back in town again. You don't even remember where he said he lives now. The idea that he's walking the same streets you do is driving you crazy. How can you find him and get him back into your life again

Jack was the first boy you ever loved. It all started back in sixth grade. You hadn't even paid any attention to boys before that . . . but Jack bowled you over . . . you had your very first dates with Jack. He showed you how it felt to hold a boy's hand in the movies. When Jack kissed you . . . you felt that you'd LIVED. You were devotion and loyalty plus to Jack . . . until he moved away.

WOODWARD

Of course, life went right on. You found a half dozen other boys to like. And right now you're very much involved with a boy named Mark. You've been going with Mark for ages now. He's been very exciting.

But that one chance encounter with Jack has flooded you with memories of how exciting your very first dates with Jack were. You're sure you could recapture that same terrific glow if you could date him again. You think to yourself that you wouldn't mind a bit not dating Mark again . . . if you could have Jack back.

And you think another thought. Jack always belonged to you in the old days. He never looked at another girl. And you don't think you could bear it if he looked at another girl now. You'll just have to do something quick . . . before he has that chance.

Perhaps you and Jack were that way about each other back in the sixth grade. And maybe it lasted through the seventh and eighth grades too . . . and right up till the time he moved away. But you've both gone your separate ways since then. You've both grown up a lot. You've both known and liked lots of people. You might find if you got together that you didn't have anything in common any more.

Jack could undoubtedly tell from the look on your face when you saw him that you were glad to see him again. If he was equally glad to see you . . . he knows where you live. He knows how to find you . . . and he may call you up.

It may not be a quick as you'd like. Jack may be the cautious type these days. He may want to start his come-back slow and easy. He wants to look the ground over and see what's what. He doesn't want to barge in on you until he finds out the state of your emotions. Why should he bother if you're all tied up? So he may take his own sweet time to look you up.

And wait until he does. Don't go tossing Mark out of the window while you're waiting either. That would be relegating a perfectly good date into your past . . . for the sake of a gamble on a guy who's very ancient history. Wait until Jack brings things up to date . . . before you plot any future.

Minute Make-Ups

If your nail polish wears off easily, try removing a hairline of the lacquer before it dries. If your lips are not smooth, use a bit of cold cream before you apply your lipstick. If wisps of hair hang loose, try a tiny touch of damp soap, rubbed up on the hair.

THESE WOMEN By d'Alessio

"I'd marry him for his money in a minute, if only I didn't have to take HIM!"

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

The tiny baby folds his fingers around a toy and they can hardly be removed from it. If he is six months or older he already has a sense of its belonging to him and he does not want to have it taken from him.

It takes many months, even years, to convince the child of the desirability of sharing what he has with others. Everything is his that comes into his possession and he is concerned only with himelf, not with others.

If we must take the toy from the small baby, we should be gentle about it and ready to replace it with something else as pleasureble.

When we give him a toy we should make it plain that we enjoy giving it to him. "Here is your rattle," we say pleasantly, "have fun with it, darling."

If the object we give him belongs to us we make that plain. "This is Mother's pocketbook! Mother will let you play with it a moment." When it must be taken away it should be replaced by one of baby's toys with an explanation that this is BABY'S. He should realize that ownership is a privilege.

If he has such experiences from the beginning he will not tend to be so selfish about letting others investigate his possessions. But this investigation should never be prolonged, be gratified if the baby will let loose of his toy and allow another child to hold it for a few moments. That will be enough. Then he should have it returned to him with thanks. Older persons should be conscientious about thanking the child for allowing them to look at what he has. It is only by such examples that the child understands that he should be asked to share his possessions with others and thanked when he gives permission.

When other children are selfish and hang onto their toys, even though asked permission to play with them, the child should be told that they haven't learned, yet, that it is nice to share with others. They will learn in time and meanwhile he should be glad that he has learned.

If the parent snatches every opportunity to show the child that she enjoys sharing; that unselfishness pays dividends in the satisfaction of giving others pleasure, the child may be hesitant at first, but eventually eager to practice this new lesson.

Our leaflet No. 69 "Selfishness and Jealousy," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with this request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of The Edmonton Bulletin.

Points for Parents

Not This

Mother: "Grandmother sent you such an expensive present, you should have sent her one in addition to mine. Buy her something today, and we'll pretend the mail was slow."

This

Mother: "Writing often to Grandmother, telling her about school and your activities, is the best way I know to show your appreciation of her lovely Christmas gift."

To Drop 550,000 From Tax List

OTTAWA, (CP) — Income and other tax changes, forcast in the budget last June 27, will come into effect Jan. 2 and, on the basis of government figures, between 550,000 and 600,000 persons will drop from income tax payment lists.

Under the changes, exemptions for single persons will be increased from $660 to $750 and those for married persons from $1,200 to 1,500.

The system of exemptions for dependents will be changed so that an allowance of $300 will be made for dependents over 16. All dependents under 16 will be considered in receipt of family allowances which average $72 a year per child. In addition to the allowances an exemption of $100 will be allowed for each child under 16.

The wartime provision under which a husband retained his marital status for income tax purposes even though his working wife was in receipt of more than $660 a year will be repealed. In future the married allowance of $1,500 will be reduced by what the wife makes above $250. If she makes more than $750 no exemption for marriage can be claimed.

Business concerns, other than co-operatives, will benefit from tax reductions. Co-operatives in certain conditions will become subject to taxation for the first time.

The corporation tax paid by business concerns will be cut from 40 to 30 percent. Excess profits will be cut from 20 to 15 percent on all income above 116 2/3 percent of standard profits.

Japs' Necessities 2,000 Times Higher

TOKYO, (AP) — The little man who shells out 100-yen notes for a purchase that once cost one yen knows a lot about inflation — but the Tokyo press reminded him Monday that costs are 2,000 times those of 1937 for many necessities of life.

And if luxuries are included, the increase in some cases amounts to 13,000 times 1937 levels, government figures noted.

The range depends upon whether the buyer patronizes "the black market," or "the black, black market," one writer observed. The only legal market is maintained by government-controlled stores selling tightly rationed foods at official prices. But the ration is insufficient, averaging 864 calories daily. Actually, Japanese ate in the past year an average of 1,380 calories daily — and even that was 500 below the 1937 diet.

Black markets, operating openly, supply the difference at any price that individual merchants can command.

Says Dr. C. M. Chavasse, Bishop of Rochester, England: "No normal home is complete without children and people who marry intending to remain childless are heading for disaster."

Canada's Exports Of Wheat Lagging

OTTAWA, (CP) — An urgent world need exists for bread grains, the dominion bureau of statistics said in a review of the world wheat situation.

Rations in many European countries are dangerously low in calories and the situation is expected to worsen as domestic supplies become exhausted.

While substantial exportable wheat surpluses existed in Canada and the United States the difficulty lay in moving the grain to export positions. Stocks in forward positions were drained during the first half of the year to meet the famine emergency in Europe and elsewhere.

Strikes Cut Movement

"The situation has been further aggravated by strikes and other transportation bottlenecks, which have slowed down movement of grain from country points through to the seaboard," the bureau continued.

Exports from both Canada and the United States during the last few months have lagged considerably behind the levels achieved last year. In 1945 Canada exported during August - November, 153,000,000 bushels of wheat and flour equivalent, while in the same period this year only 75,000,000 bushels left the country. In the United States, exports from June-December inclusive, in 1945 were 195,000,000 bushels, while 150,000,000 bushels of wheat and flour equivalent moved in the same period this year.

The critical rice shortage now existing in many countries is expected to continue in 1947.

Argentine Crop Less

The first official estimate of production in the Argentine placed the wheat crop at 218,300,000 bushels, nearly 20,000,000 bushels lower than recent trade estimates. The year-end carry-over is not expected to be large after Argentina meets domestic requirements of 120,000,000 bushels, and commitments to Spain and Brazil of 60,000,000 bushels.

Latest Australian reports indicate the new wheat crop may run to some 115,000,000 bushels, while wheat stocks at the end of November amounted to only 20,000,000. Total supplies at Dec. 1, therefore, may be estimated at 135,000,000 bushels, 15,000,000 less than on the same 1945 date. Assuming a domestic consumption of about 85,000,000 bushels, some 50,000,000 may be available for export and carry-over.

Winter wheat production in the United States has been forecast at about 947,000,000 bushels. If realized, such a crop would exceed the record 1946 winter wheat crop by 73,000,000.

See Showdown For Republicans

By Alex H. Singleton

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Strife within Republican ranks in both the United States senate and house of representatives swirls to a showdown this week which may have an impact on the legislation of the 80th congress convening Friday and on the presidential race of 1948.

By contrast, the Democrats, yielding control of both chambers after 14 years, face little internal friction in organizing for their minority-party roles.

The Republican scramble for committee assignments in the new senate may affect the course of legislation in two ways — by any alliances or enmities it causes, and by the men who wind up in the posts of authority.

The legislative record of the congress is certain to figure in the 1948 presidential campaign, and a contest for the post of majority leader in the house has overtones of jockeying for position between rival supporters of Senator Robert Taft (Rep.-Ohio) and Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, both possible presidential contenders.

Immediate attention focusses on Monday's gathering of senate Republicans, where an attempt will be made to restore party harmony in the face of a rebellion led by Senator Clyde Reed (Rep.-Kas.)

Rebuffed in the tentative slate of committee chairmen, Reed protested against what he termed the Republican "oligarchy" and called for formation of a "disinterested" committee on committees to make assignments.

Tomorrow's Planes Exhibition Feature

By James McCook

LONDON, (CP)—Aircraft of tomorrow had their trial flights at the Third National Aircraft exhibition here.

The 1,000 models, chosen from the best work of 2,000,000 model builders, included dozens of the tailless type, others with upturned gull wings, pusher engines, engines installed on pillars over cockpits, rocket propulsion, steam reaction, jet motors and controlled incidence propellors.

At the opening day they zoomed past, watched by Lord Henderson, a member of the air council, and an audience including air vice-marshals, flight sergeants and earnest small boys.

Among the models was the de Havilland Vampire, an exact model of the jet-propelled fighter, and the first model of this type to fly. With a determined whine the model sped around a table, gathered flying speed, took off and landed gently. It was attached to the table centre by a thin wire.

In an artificial lake, a model seaplane was catapulted into the air and carried on, its little motor puttering valiantly until it came down for a perfect landing. For outdoor free flight operations, remote control devices for their little machines are being developed by builders.

Experts said the show demonstrated the trend in aircraft production, with significant interest in diesel engines. Success of this engine type in models is being watched by all aircraft constructors as a possible means of cheaper plane operation.

Say Black Market In Jewelry Spreads

LONDON, (CP)—Growth of a widespread jewelry black market because of anomalies in application of the 100 percent purchase tax is reported by a government-appointed committee which studied operations in the trade.

The tax, plus increased costs of production and distribution means that "an article of fine jewelry or fine silverware which cost £100 ($400) in the shops before the war may today have to be sold to the public for about £500, and in the case of some goods even more."

The "working party" report, prepared by representatives of the employers, employes and consumers, said skilled workers are constantly leaving their jobs with established houses and setting up on their own to make diamond engagement rings and other high price jewelry, for sale "at inflated prices and in a manner which does not suffer purchase tax."

"This is undoubtedly causing serious demoralization for the industry both in the workshop and in the market.

Workers producing for the black market may be getting very good money, but they are frequently working under conditions which make production very inefficient and are utterly unhealthy."

Wants Federation Western Provinces

REGINA, (CP)—Establishment of a federation of the western provinces so there would be "freedom from domination of Ottawa" was advocated in an address at the Peoples' Forum here by R. Rogers Smith, Saskatoon, secretary of the newly-formed Western Canada Federation.

Mr. Smith, who lost his case when he appeared in a Saskatoon court recently claiming that Ottawa lacked power to levy income tax, said that "too long has the west been exploited by the east."

"We have a right to form a government in the west tomorrow if we should choose to do so," he said.

Mr. Smith said the dominion government has no "eminent domain" and thus is not a government.

He described "eminent domain" as the "basic law passed on to Canada by the sovereign."

The Western Canada Federation is an organization whose formation was announced at Saskatoon Nov. 3, with an objective to achieve "freedom from domination by Ottawa" by uniting the four western provinces.

Detective Decorated For Deed in 1937

WINNIPEG, (CP)—Leonard James Davies, a member of the Winnipeg police force, has been awarded the King's Police and Fire Service medal, it was announced here Monday.

The incident which won Detective Davies the medal occurred in 1937 when Davies shot to death convict William Morton after an automobile chase in west Winnipeg.

By his action, Davies saved the life of a fellow policeman, James Gray, now of Vancouver, who recently was awarded the same medal.

3 Fierce Panthers Get Private Car

EL PASO, Tex., (AP) — Three panthers who chewed their way out of their cage have won their fight for a private car on their train.

Dr. Noble Hamiter, trainer and shipper of the animals, who flew here from Dallas, decided it would be safer and simpler to put the panthers in another car than attempt to repair the cage. Armed only with a long stick and a chair, Hamiter entered the baggage car and in 10 minutes drove the panthers into their private car.

SENTENCE COMMUTED

LONDON, (AP)— The Russian news agency Tass, quoting the Budapest radio, reported Monday that a sentence of death on Tasnadi Nagy, former president of the Hungarian parliament, has been commuted to life imprisonment because of his advanced age.
